FIGHT AGAINST RESCUE

Insane Men Dive Under Beds While Others Give Battle To Guards

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 9—Hundreds of inmates were terrorized early today when fire razed the 53-year-old Evansville state hospital for the insane.

Doctors who battled many of the 1,186 patients in the blazing, smoke-filled wards expressed the hope they had brought all their charges to safety, but admitted it was only a hope.

Some of the patients, they said, dove under beds in their terror and confusion and others, violently insane, fought against rescue when they were roused from their sleep by the alarm of fire.

Drs. John H. Hare, superintendent, and Charles F. Murphy played such heroic roles that they were burned as they fled the on-rushing flames.

Dr. Murphy narrowly escaped with his life by sliding down a drain pipe when the fire trapped him on the third floor of one of the destroyed buildings.

Fight Against Rescue

Greatest difficulty was encountered in saving the lives of some 200 violent patients, many of whom were strapped to their beds when the fire broke out.

In straight jackets, in wristlets, or with their arms bound to their sides, the screaming madmen and women in many cases literally were dragged or carried from danger.

An improvised "concentration camp" was set up in a greenhouse and there the most dangerous of the lunatics were confined. Other inmates, however, ran or wandered away in the confusion. Some were found as far as five miles distant.

Firemen Helpless

The institution's fire department was helpless as the water supply failed. Firemen from Evansville strung hose to a nearby pond, but were unable to bring the fire under control for several hours.

The blaze started in the four-story administration building from which radiate other buildings in four directions. Soon the entire institution was a mass of flames.

To prevent the inmates from being trapped in the inferno, Dr. John H. Hare, the superintendent, aided by from 80 to 100 attendants, rushed from ward to ward liberating the insane, the violent ones among them.

The violently insane were herded first into the grounds and then into a nearby hospital building.

The fire broke out about 3 a. m. and was reported well under control three hours later.

Roundup Starts

Then began a roundup of the patients for the institution of several miles around the institution which (Continued on Page Two)

Greatest Ovation Of Modern Times Greets Churchill in Commons

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Prime Minister Winston Churchill came back to the House of Commons today to receive the greatest ovation of modern times. A tremendous outburst of cheers rocked the chamber as Churchill entered at "question time."

In the wake of the cheers came the questions, for the members wished news of the history-making conferences in North Africa and Turkey.

Mr. Churchill gave the unmistakable impression that the results, although he could not yet go into details, were distinctly cheering. One anxious member asked whether it was true that Great Britain is "dipping into its food reserves." "It is quite true that we are dipping into our reserves," Mr. Churchill admitted cheerfully. "But I am not unduly anxious about the situation. One must take a view over a long period of months."

The prime minister was asked about the much debated question of a single United Nations war council—one which has been a cause of much concern both in England and the United States.

He replied that he hoped to make a statement to the house shortly on the whole war situation "wherein undoubtedly reference will occur by no means unrelated to this problem."

The war news today gave Mr. Churchill ample grounds for optimism and cheerfulness.

THREE SURVIVE 83 DAYS ADRIFT

Two Americans Die As Raft Floats 1,800 Miles After Sub Sinks Ship

WITH THE ATLANTIC FLEET AT A BRAZILIAN PORT, Feb. 9—Adrift at sea 83 days on a rudely constructed life raft, one American and two Dutch seamen were safe in a Brazilian port today after suffering incredible hardships. Two other Americans died from hunger and exposure as the small raft drifted more than 1,800 miles after their ship was torpedoed by an enemy submarine. The American who survived the ordeal was Basil Dominic Izzi, 20, seaman second class, of South Barre, Mass. Names of the two other Americans were withheld until the navy department has notified their families.

The ship, a passenger vessel was sunk enroute from Capetown to the United States last November 2. They were rescued 70 miles off the Brazilian coast by an American submarine chaser.

Live On Courage

The survivors were sustained in the nearly three months adrift "mainly by courage, birds, fish and rainwater," said Lieut. Gifford C. Ewing of America, N. Y., commander of the rescue vessel. "They were like skeletons with skin wrapped on them," he declared. "They had long hair and tangled beards and their skin was parched by the sun. Their ragged clothes were augmented with coverings from their life jackets."

Their raft was about 10 feet square, and was buoyed by two (Continued on Page Two)

ODT Chief Urges Cities To Change Regulations To Save Tires, Gas

GUIDE FIGURES OFFERED

Circleville Awaits Book Making Suggestions For Control

All traffic lights in Circleville will be turned out as a wartime economy if recommendations of Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman are carried out.

The ODT chief Tuesday called on all cities and states to revise traffic signals and regulations to save tires, gasoline and time.

Carrying out recommendations submitted by a group of 20 street experts at his request, Eastman laid down specific standards for municipalities to follow in making traffic adjustments.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon, informed of the ODT decision, said that he would not make any comment on the program until a pamphlet containing instructions for carrying out the traffic control objectives now being prepared, is received. It is to be mailed in a few days to mayors of all cities.

Figures Given

In a statement addressed to all state and municipal authorities having traffic regulatory powers, the ODT chief said that the operation of traffic signals should be discontinued where traffic falls below these accepted minimum standards:

1. Total traffic entering the intersection from all directions should average at least 1,000 vehicles an hour for eight hours, of which at least 250 enter from the minor street, or 2. Pedestrians (Continued on Page Two)

RESTRICTIONS ON RECAPPING MAY BE LIFTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—An OPA order removing all restrictions on having tires recapped on retreaded with cambelback, effective about March 1, was expected today.

The OPA was ordered to take the action by Rubber Director William Jeffers who said that there would be enough reclaimed rubber to carry out the program.

The order will not end the present rigid control over purchase of renovated tires, but will permit car owners to have their own tires recapped without government authorization.

Jeffers asked that the order be issued as a rubber conservation measure. OPA sources explained that it would result in a saving of rubber since it is designed to encourage motorists to have their tires recapped before they are worn beyond repair and new tires are required.

The basic critical rubber situation program will require no synthetic rubber and only small quantities of crude rubber are necessary to cement the cambelback to the tire.

ABSENTEES MAY LOSE HOMES IN PORTLAND AREA

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 9—Steps to combat increasing absenteeism in Portland shipyards were taken today by the city's housing authority which threatened to evict from housing projects all workers who do not report regularly on their jobs.

The threat was issued after directors of the housing authority were informed that many of the absentees live in homes and barracks maintained by the authority. Absenteeism rose to nearly 15 per cent of the city's shipbuilders in January, the directors were told.

JAPS LAND ON NEW GUINEA BEACH—FOR GOOD

THIS PICTURE, just arrived from the Buna front, shows the bodies of three Japanese soldiers sprawled on a beach at Buna Mission, New Guinea. The Japs came ashore in the landing barge on which U. JUDGE PLANS APPEAL FROM BRIBE VERDICT

GREENVILLE, O., Feb. 9—Attorneys for Darke County Probate Judge Harry E. Miles, found guilty by a jury of seven men and five women of bribery in connection with the granting of fees for administering an estate, were expected to file motions for a new trial today.

The case went to the jury at 3:15 p. m. yesterday and the verdict was returned at 9:10 p. m. Sentence was deferred pending disposal of the new trial motion.

The indictment against Judge Miles charged him with "soliciting a bribe" of $1,500 after Joseph E. Menke, cashier of the Farmers National bank of Greenville and co-administrator of the estate of the late Village S. Marker, and T. A. Billingsley, member of the state racing commission and attorney for the estate, applied for the $10,900 fee.

Under the law, sentence for bribery is one to 10 years, Judge R. L. Cameron said.

Menke and Billingsley also are under indictment, charged with "offering a bribe of $1,500 in an attempt to influence the court." They also pleaded innocent and their trials are scheduled March 22 and 23.

OHIO ASSEMBLY READY TO ACT ON TIME CHANGE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 9—The fate of the emergency clause in the bill to turn Ohio clocks back one hour to "slow time" was to be decided in the Ohio senate today.

If the clause is upheld, the bill will become effective the Sunday following the governor's signature—either this coming Sunday, February 14, or the following Sunday, February 21.

If the clause is defeated, the bill will not become effective until 90 days have passed, or until some time in May.

Time change proponents predicted that the clause, re-inserted by the house after being stricken from the measure as passed in the senate, would be upheld. Sen. Albert Daniels (R-Highland) co-author of the bill, said that the two votes by which the emergency clause was defeated were "in the bag," although he declined to state what two senators had changed their vote.

The clause was defeated when the senate passed the measure, drawing only 20 votes, or two short of the constitutionally required two-thirds majority needed to uphold an emergency section. The senate passed the bill, however, 22 to 8. A vote similar to the latter would concur in the house amendments and make the bill effective the Sunday following the governor's signature.

There was some speculation as to when the governor would sign the measure after it was placed on his desk. If it reaches him tomorrow, Bricker could make the time-change operative this coming Sunday.

CITY COUNCIL ABOUT WRECKED BY WORLD WAR

PITTSFIELD, Ill., Feb. 9—The current manpower shortage had just about wrecked the Pittsfield City Council today and only the remnants of a municipal government remained.

Mayor Clarence Benson left to work in a defense plant in Louisiana, Mo. Alderman Marshall Mink and Delbert Ervin went into the army. Alderman Owen Metz moved to Birmingham, Ala.

Now the city council can't assemble a quorum and there hasn't been a council meeting in more than a month. It looks as if the city would have to worry along as it is until the city election which falls on April 8.

HOUSE TURNS ON PLAN AGENCY

Drive Against Bureaucracy Takes New Phase In Elimination Move

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—The congressional drive against bureaucracy took a new turn today when the house appropriations committee voted to abolish the administration's key post-war planning agency—the National Resources Planning Board—by severing it from funds.

The action was disclosed as the committee formally reported its second major appropriations bill of the year—a huge $2,621,000,000 measure to finance the activities of 17 so-called independent establishments of the government through the fiscal year starting June 30.

The planning board, which is headed by President Roosevelt's uncle, Frederic A. Delano, had sought $1,400,000 for the period. The committee's adverse action (Continued on Page Two)

SENATE SEEKS F.D.R.'S OPINION ON LABOR DRAFT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—The attitude of President Roosevelt and key war executives on the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill, under which labor would be drafted if needed, was sought today by the senate military affairs committee.

Action on the measure will be delayed pending official administration reports. A canvass of the senate, however, indicated that the measure was coolly received and faces strong opposition.

The military affairs committee sent the bill to the war and navy departments, to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson for reports.

All reports are expected to be cleared through the budget bureau to determine whether they are in accord with White House policy. Thus, the attitude of the President would be disclosed.

McNutt, questioned after introduction of the bill, refused to comment directly on the measure but indicated that national service legislation is not yet necessary to solve the nation's manpower problems.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today urged that lend-lease funds be used to arm people of occupied European countries as U. S. forces pass through such areas "on the way to Germany."

"We know we are going to be operating in occupied countries of Europe," Knox said while testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on lend-lease operations.

Knox declared that he was not revealing future military plans but he was emphatic in stating that he believed American forces soon might be operating on the European continent itself.

Nippon's "unbeatable" forces are evacuating Guadalcanal and enemy resistance on that embattled island has ceased, Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed today.

Thus, almost six months to the day that hard-fighting United States marines landed on that tropical island to seize and hold the important Henderson airfield, the American forces emerge victorious—and another step is taken on the road to Tokyo.

The marines landed on Guadalcanal early last August. Army forces relieved them in January.

The admission by Knox was a dramatic climax to the American land offensive which began late in December and culminated with the encirclement recently of Cape Esperance on the northwest tip of the island. It was the second major land defeat for Nippon's forces, following closely the victory on New Guinea by troops under the command of General Douglas MacArthur.

Makes Statement

Knox made this statement after reading a Berlin dispatch quoting Tokyo sources which stated that the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal and at Buna in New Guinea "had been transferred" to other bases.

"I don't think there is any doubt about the truth of that statement," Knox told a press conference.

He added, however, that full confirmation of this latest Jap move still was lacking and said that small groups of enemy forces still may be holding out on the long-embattled island.

The secretary stated that recent Japanese sea force movements in the South Pacific could possibly

Knox declared that he was not revealing future military plans but he was emphatic in stating that he believed American forces soon might be operating on the European continent itself.

Nippon's "unbeatable" forces are evacuating Guadalcanal and enemy resistance on that embattled island has ceased, Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed today.

Thus, almost six months to the day that hard-fighting United States marines landed on that tropical island to seize and hold the important Henderson airfield, the American forces emerge victorious—and another step is taken on the road to Tokyo.

The marines landed on Guadalcanal early last August. Army forces relieved them in January.

The admission by Knox was a dramatic climax to the American land offensive which began late in December and culminated with the encirclement recently of Cape Esperance on the northwest tip of the island. It was the second major land defeat for Nippon's forces, following closely the victory on New Guinea by troops under the command of General Douglas MacArthur.

Makes Statement

Knox made this statement after reading a Berlin dispatch quoting Tokyo sources which stated that the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal and at Buna in New Guinea "had been transferred" to other bases.

"I don't think there is any doubt about the truth of that statement," Knox told a press conference.

He added, however, that full confirmation of this latest Jap move still was lacking and said that small groups of enemy forces still may be holding out on the long-embattled island.

The secretary stated that recent Japanese sea force movements in the South Pacific could possibly

This recalled statements in navy communiques recently that barges were seen in the Guadalcanal vicinity and were attacked by American planes and surface ships.

"We have information from Guadalcanal supporting these reports of evacuation," Knox emphasized. "All enemy resistance apparently has ceased except for small groups."

Knox emphasized that he "had some information" from the battle zone indicating that the Nipponese have been evacuating their forces during the last two or three weeks. Fine U. S. Base

Knox stressed the importance of the capture and holding of Guadalcanal by American forces could strike at other Japanese-held points. "The capture has both positive and negative value," Knox said, "It denied this position to the Japanese for raids on our communications and brought us up within striking distance of some of their most important bases."

"The story of the southwest Pacific would have been a vastly different story for the last three or four months if we hadn't established ourselves on Guadalcanal successfully."

No Naval News Knox added that he had no further reports on skirmishes between American and Japanese warship task forces in that area but said he presumed these "preliminary plays" still are going on.

Russian armies surged ahead along a 500-mile front after capturing the German Bastion at Kursk, a stronghold that fell to the enemy after four months of war and had been firmly held by them for the last 15 months.

The last tattered remnants of the Afrika Korps have been driven from Libya, Allied aircraft in the Southwest Pacific continued the unbroken daily assaults on enemy bases, and the RAF and the London area ground defenses broke up a weak Nazi attempt to raid the city.

Stockholm reported that a series of heavy explosions were heard from the direction of Copenhagen which suggested that Allied bombers were over the Danish capital. Berne reported that Mussolini had strengthened military guards in the larger Italian cities in fear of anti-government demonstrations, and Berlin admitted that increasing Allied raids on the submarine base at Lorient, France, has resulted in an order to all civilians to evacuate the port by Wednesday.

Nazi columns were reported in retreat westward from Rostov toward Mariupol, 100 miles to the rear, in an effort to escape encirclement. But Soviet armies which have smashed westward of Mariupol in the Krivatorsk and Izum sectors, 100 miles north, were swinging southward and threatened to outflank the retreating foe.

Speed of the Russian advance was revealed in the mid-day communiqué which said that after capturing Kursk Soviet spearheads had driven westward to occupy several additional towns and had slain 6,000 Axis troops.

Midway between Kursk and Kharkov to the south, Red army forces occupied the town of Korosha, 25 miles east of Belgorod, a strong point in the enemy defense line.

The weak German defense of Kursk, vital to the Axis defense line running from Orel 500 miles southeast to Rostov, gave rise to hopes that the enemy could be routed along the whole front and driven back to the Dnieper river.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land-based bombers made a prolonged night attack on the Japanese airfield at Bul in the northern Solomons. Tremendous explosions that rocked the planes more than 9,000 feet above, and huge fires visible 90 miles away, were reported as bombs fell on ammunition dumps and grounded planes. A 2,000-ton supply ship was destroyed offshore.

Other bases were bombed on New Guinea, on New Britain island to the east and in the Aru Islands to the west.

The single Japanese success was the sinking of a small United Nations supply ship off the east coast of Australia.

1943 FISHING LICENSES TO BE AVAILABLE SOON

New 1943 fishing licenses are being prepared by the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources for consignment to dealers throughout the state. No fishing may be done after March 1 without new licenses.

Harry F. West, chief of the accounting and budget section of the department in charge of licenses, said that shipments will be made to dealers immediately so that Ohio's anglers, including several hundred in Circleville and Pickaway county, may buy them well in advance of March 1.

With more fishing water available in Ohio during the coming season and the stress which is being placed on the slogan "fish for food" it is expected that there will be a heavy sale of licenses this Spring.

Digests, giving a resume of the new fishing regulations, will be furnished with each license. Although the complete orders affecting fishing and hunting are on file in the office of Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder, so that all may know the laws, these digests offer the main points in the law and are quite handy to tuck into the tackle box.

Few changes were made in the commission orders adopted and which will soon be placed on file in the clerks of courts' office. In southern Ohio, where the spawning season is earlier, the closed season on black bass will be different from the counties in the northern zone, this being the chief change in the regulations. The closed season in the southern zone below a line across the state, starting at the Indiana state line and following State Route 35 to Chillicothe, route 50 to Athens and alternate Route 50 (sometimes known as Route 50 North) to Marietta, will be from April 15 to May 31 inclusive.

Above those routes the season will be the same as in 1942—from May 1 to June 15, inclusive. In Lake Erie district the black bass closed season will be from May 25 to June 30 inclusive.

So now is the time to check that fishing tackle and make a memo on the calendar to visit the license dealer as soon as the new 1943 licenses are on sale so you will be able to display the new license, as required, on March 1.

PREPARE FOR CAN RATIONING, CHIEF WARNS

Residents of Circleville and Pickaway county were reminded Tuesday by George D. McDowell, chairman of the War Price and Rationing Board, to begin preparing for canned goods rationing which will begin March 1.

The Office of Price Administration has announced that beginning February 20 there will be a "freeze" of sales to the public of foods to be rationed to permit retailers to prepare for the new program. The freeze period will be the week of February 20 and during that week War Ration Book No. 2 will be issued to everyone.

Foods to be rationed under the point system at the start will be canned and bottled fruits, vegetables and juices, canned soups, frozen fruits and vegetables and dried fruits.

Citizens are urged by Mr. McDowell not to buy more canned goods than they need between now and the beginning of rationing. Hoarding, he pointed out, defeats the whole purpose of a rationing program and means that the hoarder is trying to get a bigger share of scarce items than his friends and neighbors.

"Many persons have asked why food rationing is necessary," Mr. McDowell said. "In answer to this question I am going to recall a familiar saying, 'An army fights on its stomach.'"

"This is true today as it was in the days of old. It is reassuring to know that we have the best-fed army in the world. It takes more to feed a soldier than it does to feed a civilian. But here on the home front the workers in our war plants, in fact our entire civilian population, must have healthful, well-balanced meals, if we are to carry on to the best of our ability the long list of essential activities within our own borders. The soldiers, and workers of the United Nations—our comrades in arms—are looking to us for part of the food they eat, and where practical they supply some of the food that feeds our troops.

"As a matter of fact, the movement of huge food supplies across oceans, through deserts, and along steaming jungle trails, is as important to victory as the swift and strategic movement of men and ammunition.

"Those are the reasons why food is a weapon of war. How fortunate are we that America is producing more of it than ever before."

HOUSE TURNS ON PLAN AGENCY

(Continued from Page One) was taken without comment in its formal report. An outgrowth of the old federal employment stabilization board created in 1931, the planning agency has been under steady congressional fire for the last six years, however.

The committee's decision was the high point in the consideration of the multi-billion dollar measure which carried $1,289,000,000 for the maritime commission's ship construction program, $887,000,000 for the veterans' administration, $191,000,000 for civil service, and similarly increased allocations for other independent agencies which are performing war-time functions.

In its report, the committee observed that of the overall $2,621,000,000 figure, 87.7 percent could be "pointed to as being definitely earmarked for war purposes." Compared with budget requests, the total approved by the committee represented a reduction of less than $6,500,000.

Largest single reduction was the elimination of the $1,400,000 request by the National Resources Planning Board. Hearings released simultaneously with the committee's report, disclosed that members had been sharply critical of the testimony by board officials, but beyond a statement that 157 other government agencies are engaged in planning, few, if any, specific charges were leveled.

HENRY PFEIFFER, OHIO SPORTSMAN, DIES IN KENTON

Henry J. Pfeiffer, 61, widely known sportsman, a member of the state conservation commission and a close friend of the late E. H. Rausenberger of Circleville, died Monday night in McKittrick hospital, Kenton, where he was taken last Thursday following a cerebral hemorrhage. He died without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Pfeiffer was chairman of the erous meetings in Circleville of the Pickaway county Farmer's and Sportsman's association and had numerous acquaintances in the city and county.

Mr. Pfeiffer was chairman of the Hardin county Republican executive committee and was one of the state's best known sportsmen. He was an official of the national Leafy Oak dog field trials for many years.

Survivors include his widow, a son, John, and daughter, Mrs. Paul Ruopp of Detroit.

JOHN DUFFY, FORMER CITY RESIDENT, DIES

John Duffy, 45, former widely known Circleville resident, died Monday evening at his home, 832 Oak street, Columbus, following a lengthy illness. Mr. Duffy, son of Joseph and Bertha Boyer Duffy, was born in Circleville and spent his early life here. He removed to Columbus about 25 years ago.

Mr. Duffy was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and gained his education in the church's school operated here.

The body will remain at the home, Oak street, until time for funeral Thursday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's Cathedral, Columbus. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

DUNKEL APPOINTED Wilson Dunkel of Washington township, former Pickaway county infirmary superintendent, was appointed Monday by the Pickaway county commissioners as a new member of the Children's Home board of trustees. Mr. Dunkel's appointment fills the vacancy left by death of George Shook of Jackson township.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS MAY GO OUT ON EASTMAN PLEA

ODT Chief Urges Cities To Change Regulations To Save Tires, Gas

(Continued from Page One) crossing the major street should average at least 300 an hour for at least six hours a day, and vehicles entering the intersection from the major street should average at least 750 an hour for the same six hours.

Eastman emphasized that no signal should be eliminated which is an essential part of a coordinated system for expediting traffic, or if an extraordinary accident hazard would result.

Traffic regulations, such as those governing turning restrictions, through streets and parking, he said, should be reviewed and revised to expedite vehicle movement where the war has either increased or decreased traffic.

Procedure Suggested

Eastman said that a system of war transportation routes, to which preferred traffic control treatment would be given should be designated in every municipality and the routes should consider the needs of both workers and vehicles carrying war materials.

Pointing out that traffic control equipment requires critical materials, Eastman told the cities and states that every effort must be made to use most effectively the equipment already on hand before applying to government agencies for assistance in the purchase of new equipment.

"The necessity for conserving vehicles, rubber and fuel, and the enormous expansion of war production in some areas, have created important changes in street traffic," Eastman said.

"Adjustments in traffic control methods have not kept pace with these changing conditions.

"This is wasting rubber, gasoline and time.

"In the national interest this waste cannot be permitted to continue."

ONNO WILSON BACK IN JAIL FOR LONG STAY

Onno Wilson of Circleville and Dayton was back in the county jail Tuesday to serve out the remainder of a year's sentence imposed by Judge Meeker Terwilliger for being an habitual offender.

Wilson was charged with numerous misdemeanors, intoxication, disorderly conduct and other minor charges putting him in jail many times in the last few years.

Wilson had served more than six months of his year's term when he was granted probation following several months as a county jail trusty. Shortly after he was released from the county jail he was arrested in Dayton and sentenced to the workhouse.

Following releases there he returned to Circleville, but did not stay out of jail long. An intoxication charge returned him to a cell Saturday night.

Monday afternoon, Judge Terwilliger revoked the probation and ordered Wilson back in jail. He will remain there until sometime in May.

FIGHTING ENDS AT VITAL BASE, KNOX DECLARES

Nippon's "Unbeatable" Army Decides It Has Enough Of Yank Fighters

move troops from Guadalcanal to other bases in the Solomons, either on New Georgia or Kolombangara islands.

"We have information from Guadalcanal supporting these reports of evacuation," Knox emphasized.

"All enemy resistance apparently has ceased except for small groups."

Knox emphasized that he "had some information" from the battle zone indicating that the Nipponese have been evacuating their forces during the last two or three weeks.

Fine U. S. Base

Knox stressed the importance of the capture and holding of Guadalcanal by American forces and said it provided bases from which American forces could strike at other Japanese-held points.

"The capture has both positive and negative value," Knox said. "It denied this position to the Japanese for raids on our communications and brought us up within striking distance of some of their most important bases."

"The story of the southwest Pacific would have been a vastly different story for the last three or four months if we hadn't established ourselves on Guadalcanal successfully."

No Naval News

Knox added that he had no further reports on skirmishes between American and Japanese warship task forces in that area but said he presumed these "preliminary plays" still are going on.

Russian armies surged ahead along a 500-mile front after capturing the German Bastion at Kursk, a stronghold that fell to the enemy after four months of war and had been firmly held by them for the last 15 months.

The last tattered remnants of the Afrika Korps has been driven from Libya, Allied aircraft in the Southwest Pacific continued the unbroken daily assaults on enemy bases, and the RAF and the London area ground defenses broke up a weak Nazi attempt to raid the city.

Stockholm reported that a series of heavy explosions were heard from the direction of Copenhagen which suggested that Allied bombers were over the Danish capital. Berne reported that Mussolini had strengthened military guards in the larger Italian cities in fear of anti-government demonstrations, and Berlin admitted that increasing Allied raids on the submarine base at Lorient, France, has resulted in an order to all civilians to evacuate the port by Wednesday.

Nazi columns were reported in retreat westward from Rostov toward Mariupol, 100 miles to the rear, in an effort to escape encirclement. But Soviet armies which have smashed westward of Mariupol in the Kramatorsk and Izium sectors, 100 miles north, were swinging southward and threatened to outflank the retreating force.

Speed of the Russian advance was revealed in the mid-day communication which said that after capturing Kursk Soviet spearheads had driven westward to occupy several additional towns and had slain 6,000 Axis troops.

Midway between Kursk and Kharkov to the south, Red army forces occupied the town of Korosha, 25 miles east of Belgorod, a strong point in the enemy defense line.

The weak German defense of Kursk, vital to the Axis defense line running from Orel 500 miles southeast to Rostov, gave rise to hopes that the enemy could be routed along the whole front and driven back to the Dnieper river.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land-based bombers made a prolonged night attack on the Japanese airfield at Buin in the northern Solomons. Tremendous explosions that rocked the planes more than 9,000 feet above, and huge fires visible 90 miles away, were reported as bombs fell on ammunition dumps and grounded planes. A 2,000-ton supply ship was destroyed off-shore.

Other bases were bombed on New Guinea, on New Britain island to the east and in the Aru Islands to the west.

The single Japanese success was the sinking of a small United Nations supply ship off the east coast of Australia.

HENRY T. HEISTAND, 78, PROMINENT FARMER, DIES

Henry T. Heistand, 78, prominent Fayette county farmer and father of Mrs. Walter Bumgarner of Jackson township, died Monday at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Percie Kennel of near Washington, C. H. Two other daughters, a son and a sister survive. Funeral will be Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the Hook funeral home, Washington C. H.

1943 FISHING LICENSES TO BE AVAILABLE SOON

New 1943 fishing licenses are being prepared by the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources for consignment to dealers throughout the state. No fishing may be done after March 1 without new licenses.

Harry F. West, chief of the accounting and budget section of the department in charge of licenses, said that shipments will be made to dealers immediately so that Ohio's anglers, including several hundred in Circleville and Pickaway county, may buy them well in advance of March 1.

With more fishing water available in Ohio during the coming season and the stress which is being placed on the slogan "fish for food" it is expected that there will be a heavy sale of licenses this Spring.

Digests, giving a resume of the new fishing regulations, will be furnished with each license. Although the complete orders affecting fishing and hunting are on file in the office of Clerk of Courts A. L. Wilder, so that all may know the laws, these digests offer the main points in the law and are quite handy to tuck into the tackle box.

Few changes were made in the commission orders adopted and which will soon be placed on file in the clerks of courts' office. In southern Ohio, where the spawning season is earlier, the closed season on black bass will be different from the counties in the northern zone, this being the chief change in the regulations. The closed season in the southern zone below a line across the state, starting at the Indiana state line and following State Route 35 to Chillicothe, route 50 to Athens and alternate route 50 (sometimes known as Route 50 North) to Marietta, will be from April 15 to May 31 inclusive. Above those routes the season will be the same as in 1942—from May 1 to June 15, inclusive.

In Lake Erie district the black bass closed season will be from May 25 to June 30 inclusive. So now is the time to check that fishing tackle and make a memo on the calendar to visit the license dealer as soon as the new 1943 licenses are on sale so you will be able to display the new license, as required, on March 1.

PREPARE FOR CAN RATIONING, CHIEF WARNS

Residents of Circleville and Pickaway county were reminded Tuesday by George D. McDowell, chairman of the War Price and Rationing Board, to begin preparing for canned goods rationing which will begin March 1.

The Office of Price Administration has announced that beginning February 20 there will be a "freeze" of sales to the public of foods to be rationed to permit retailers to prepare for the new program. The freeze period will be the week of February 20 and during that week War Ration Book No. 2 will be issued to everyone.

Foods to be rationed under the point system at the start will be canned and bottled fruits, vegetables and juices, canned soups, frozen fruits and vegetables and dried fruits.

Citizens are urged by Mr. McDowell not to buy more canned goods than they need between now and the beginning of rationing. Hoarding, he pointed out, defeats the whole purpose of a rationing program and means that the hoarder is trying to get a bigger share of scarce items than his friends and neighbors.

"Many persons have asked why food rationing is necessary," Mr. McDowell said. "In answer to this question I am going to recall a familiar saying, 'An army fights on its stomach.'"

"This is true today as it was in the days of old. It is reassuring to know that we have the best-fed army in the world. It takes more to feed a soldier than it does to feed a civilian. But here on the home front the workers in our war plants, in fact our entire civilian population, must have healthful, well-balanced meals, if we are to carry on to the best of our ability the long list of essential activities within our own borders. The soldiers, and workers of the United Nations—our comrades in arms—are looking to us for part of the food they eat, and where practical they supply some of the food that feeds our troops."

"As a matter of fact, the movement of huge food supplies across oceans, through deserts, and along steaming jungle trails, is as important to victory as the swift and strategic movement of men and ammunition."

"Those are the reasons why food is a weapon of war. How fortunate we are that America is producing more of it than ever before."

was taken without comment in its formal report. An outgrowth of the old federal employment stabilization board created in 1931, the planning agency has been under steady congressional fire for the last six years, however.

The committee's decision was the high point in the consideration of the multi-billion dollar measure which carried $1,289,000,000 for the maritime commission's ship construction program, $887,000,000 for the veterans' administration, $191,000,000 for civil service, and similarly increased allocations for other independent agencies which are performing war-time functions.

In its report, the committee observed that of the overall $2,621,000,000 figure, 87.7 percent could be "pointed to as being definitely earmarked for war purposes." Compared with budget requests, the total approved by the committee represented a reduction of less than $650,000.

Largest single reduction was the elimination of the $1,400,000 request by the National Resources Planning Board. Hearings released simultaneously with the committee's report, disclosed that members had been sharply critical of the testimony by board officials, but beyond a statement that 157 other government agencies are engaged in planning, few, if any, specific charges were leveled.

HENRY PFEIFFER, OHIO SPORTSMAN, DIES IN KENTON

Henry J. Pfeiffer, 61, widely known sportsman, a member of the state conservation commission and a close friend of the late E. H. Raussenberger of Circleville, died Monday night in McKittrick hospital, Kenton, where he was taken last Thursday following a cerebral hemorrhage. He died without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Pfeiffer was chairman of the erous meetings in Circleville of the Pickaway county Farmer's and Sportsman's association and had numerous acquaintances in the city and county.

Mr. Pfeiffer was chairman of the Hardin county Republican executive committee and was one of the state's best known sportsmen. He was an official of the national Leafy Oak dog field trials for many years.

Survivors include his widow, a son, John, and daughter, Mrs. Paul Ruopp of Detroit.

JOHN DUFFY, FORMER CITY RESIDENT, DIES

John Duffy, 45, former widely known Circleville resident, died Monday evening at his home, 832 Oak street, Columbus, following a lengthy illness. Mr. Duffy, son of Joseph and Bertha Boyer Duffy, was born in Circleville and spent his early life here. He moved to Columbus about 25 years ago.

Mr. Duffy was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and gained his education in the church's school operated here.

The body will remain at the home, Oak street, until time for funeral Thursday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's Cathedral, Columbus. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS MAY GO OUT ON EASTMAN PLEA

crossing the major street should average at least 300 an hour for at least six hours a day, and vehicles entering the intersection from the major street should average at least 750 an hour for the same six hours.

Eastman emphasized that no signal should be eliminated which is an essential part of a coordinated system for expediting traffic, or if an extraordinary accident hazard would result.

Traffic regulations, such as those governing turning restrictions, through streets and parking, he said, should be reviewed and revised to expedite vehicle movement where the war has either increased or decreased traffic.

Procedure Suggested

Eastman said that a system of war transportation routes, to which preferred traffic control treatment would be given should be designated in every municipality and the routes should consider the needs of both workers and vehicles carrying war materials.

Pointing out that traffic control equipment requires critical materials, Eastman told the cities and states that every effort must be made to use most effectively the equipment already on hand before applying to government agencies for assistance in the purchase of new equipment.

"The necessity for conserving vehicles, rubber and fuel, and the enormous expansion of war production in some areas, have created important changes in street traffic," Eastman said.

"Adjustments in traffic control methods have not kept pace with these changing conditions. 'This is wasting rubber, gasoline and time."

"In the national interest this waste cannot be permitted to continue."

ONNO WILSON BACK IN JAIL FOR LONG STAY

Onno Wilson of Circleville and Dayton was back in the county jail Tuesday to serve out the remainder of a year's sentence imposed by Judge Meeker Terwilliger for being an habitual offender. Wilson was charged with numerous misdemeanors, intoxication, disorderly conduct and other minor charges putting him in jail many times in the last few years.

Wilson had served more than six months of his year's term when he was granted probation following several months as a county jail trusty. Shortly after he was released from the county jail he was arrested in Dayton and sentenced to the workhouse.

Following releases there he returned to Circleville, but did not stay out of jail long. An intoxication charge returned him to a cell Saturday night.

Monday afternoon, Judge Terwilliger revoked the probation and ordered Wilson back in jail. He will remain there until sometime in May.

COUNTY PILOT GAINS CREDIT FOR HEROISM

Lieutenant Lloyd George, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. George of near Atlanta, was given credit in an English newspaper for displaying great courage in helping to return an American Flying Fortress to its base after it had been hit nine times by German explosive cannon shells during a raid over Europe.

The newspaper, published in an unnamed English city, said that "Lieutenant George, co-pilot on the Fortress, displayed great courage and rendered invaluable aid to the pilot in returning the damaged airplane to a friendly base."

The clipping sent to Lieutenant George's parents also said that a Lieutenant Ford, otherwise unidentified, serving as bombardier on the Fortress, received a citation for bravery in extinguishing a fire which broke out on the Fortress during the raid. The clipping said Lieutenant Ford suffered from severe burns on his hands.

Lieutenant George, who will be 25 years old next Monday, enlisted as an aviation cadet at Fort Hayes, Columbus, December 24, 1941. He resigned a position with the Belden Manufacturing Co., Richmond, Ind., to enter service.

planning their hopes on Casey for just the week before he had socked out a home run to win a game from Boston under similar circumstances. Thayer, who was covering the game, wrote in his poem: "And when responding to the cheers,"

"He lightly doffed his hat, 'No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'Twas Casey at the bat.'"

"But try as I might I couldn't touch the ball," Casey sadly recalled in a radio broadcast several years ago. "I went out, one, two, three."

Casey, who pitched 52 games for the Phils that year, winning 38, retired from baseball several years afterward and later moved to nearby Silver Springs, Md.

Dan was taken to the hospital last September, but after having two strikes called on him he fooled the "umpire," on that trip to the plate. His illness came back, however and he took the third strike last night.

"And somewhere men are laughing, 'But there is no joy in Mudville—' 'Mighty Casey has struck out.'"

HENRY MELLON, AGE PENSIONER, IS FOUND DEAD

Henry Mellon, 80, was found dead Tuesday at 10 a. m. in his room in the rear of the Kroger store at 636 South Court street, death from natural causes presumably happening either last Friday night or Saturday. Mr. Mellon, a retired farm laborer and an old age pensioner, was last seen last Friday evening when he was in the Kroger store.

Discovery of his body by William Lanman, South Court street, was made after Mrs. William Goeller, who lives beside the store, told Mr. Lanman that she hadn't seen any movement about Mr. Mellon's room for the last several days. Mr. Lanman found the aged man lying on the floor.

The body was taken to the Mader funeral home where funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 10 a. m. by the Rev. James O. Miller. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Mr. Mellon was born October 12, 1862, in Jackson township. He never married and so far as authorities know he has no survivors.

RATION BOARD MOVING TO NEW HEADQUARTERS

Transfer of Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office from city hall to the county garage building, West High street, will be completed Wednesday afternoon.

The office will follow its regular schedule, closing from noon Wednesday until noon Thursday after which it will be open for business as usual. The office remains open Thursday until 9:30 p. m.

Transfer of the office equipment to the county garage building will provide the office staff more room in which to carry on its ever-increasing program.

INMATES FREED AND MANY FLEE INTO DARKNESS

is situated two and a half miles east of Evansville.

Supt. Hare said a card index containing the names of all the patients had been saved from the blaze and that this would be checked to discover those who either had been trapped in the flames or were missing after they had been turned loose.

The superintendent said he was hopeful that none had been burned to death, but witnesses said they did not see how all could have escaped.

The hospital grounds were a scene of indescribable confusion as the inmates were forced out of the hospital and began running wildly about.

Scores disappeared in the darkness in all directions. Attendants were forced to battle some of the violent patients who refused to leave the burning building. They put wristlets and straight-jackets on them and carried them bodily from the violent wards.

Soldiers stationed near Evansville, joined with state and city police and hospital attendants in the work of rounding up the inmates and in guarding those who remained on the grounds which comprise 800 acres.

Hospital authorities appealed to relatives of the patients to come and get those who could be removed to their homes until new quarters are arranged for them.

Of the 24 wards of the hospital, all but six were destroyed.

The hospital was built in 1890 at a cost of $1,300,000.

Rescue of the records was at the instigation of Mrs. Alberta Colvin, chief record clerk, she asked friends to break into the office and get the card index which carried the names of the inmates.

MARINES, ARMY DISCHARGE HIM; KID GIVES UP

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Feb. 9.—Lawrence Price at 16 was resigned today to a civilian life for a few months, although he is a "veteran" of both the army and the marine corps and holds an honorable discharge from each.

"I've given up trying to fool them about my age," he said.

Price is just back from an army hitch which was cut short at three months when the commanding officer received a letter from Mrs. Mary E. Price, the lad's mother, apprising him that Lawrence's age was somewhat less than appeared on his enlistment papers.

Not a bit fazed, Lawrence joined up with the marines and out of this got 10 weeks of training at the San Diego, Cal., base before his commanding officer there, likewise, discovered his true age and out he went.

"The army just patted me on the shoulder and told me to go home for a while and come back when I was 17," Lawrence said. "And they told me not to join the navy, but I wasn't going to try the navy anyway. I don't like their uniforms."

BARBARA E. CONGROVE DIES AT ADELPHI HOME

Mrs. Barbara Ellen Congrove, widow of George Congrove, died Tuesday at 4:30 a. m. at her home in Adelphi after a year's illness. Mrs. Congrove, who was 89, was born in Ross county September 10, 1853, a daughter of John and Lucinda Hettinger McCabe. Her husband died in 1938.

Surviving are the following children, Mrs. Mary Smith, Adelphi; Mrs. Mettie Ebert, Barborton; Arthur Congrove, Kingston, and Mrs. Oleo Bowsher, Adelphi; 27 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren, and five great-great-grandchildren. A sister, Mrs. Lena Whistler, of Elkhardt, Ind., also survives.

Funeral will be Thursday at 2 p. m. in the Adelphi Methodist church, the Revs. I. C. Wright and L. W. Green officiating with burial in Green Summit cemetery, Adelphi L. E. Hill, Kingston, is in charge of funeral arrangements.

COTTON ED SEES REAL DANGER IN FOOD SHORTAGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Sen. Ellison D. "Cotton Ed" Smith (D) S. C., today declared that America is in danger of the most terrible food shortage in its history as he called on congress to assert its constitutional rights and outlaw government by executive order.

The dean of the senate said he believes the American people's patriotism can be trusted to do whatever is necessary to win the war without subjecting them to regimentation.

"The truth is," the South Carolinian said, "that we're ignoring the American people and for what reason I don't know."

Smith would see that the American people are fed and clothed and given the necessities of life before shipping these necessities overseas to anybody except the fighting forces.

"This is not the only war the American people have been in," he said. "Why should they be accused of being disloyal. We're not fighting now the people who struck at us. It was Japan that hit us. It looks like we have more concern about what England is suffering than we have about ourselves."

"Of course, we want allies, but we'd better trust the American people to do the right thing without all this regimentation."

Smith said there must be a halt to the drafting of labor from the farms.

DEFENSE UNITS FOR LOCAL DUTY TO BE DOUBLED

Two local Defense Council units will be doubled immediately, it became known following a meeting of the Circleville directors Monday evening. Robert Wolf has completed plans to double the auxiliary fire fighting unit in the city, and Charles Radcliff is planning doubling the number of auxiliary policemen for county duty.

Twenty-five First Aid stations now have been established in Circleville and will be equipped soon to meet any likely emergency.

Announcement was made that Civilian Defense class in fire defense will be conducted in the courthouse at 7:30 p. m. the evening of February 18. While the class is primarily for members of the air raid warden and fire watcher units it will be open to all workers who have not yet completed this phase of training.

FATHER OF SIX DRAWS FINE AS WILD DRIVER

Paul Denney of Bidwell, Gallia county, married and father of six children, was lodged in county jail Monday afternoon by the state highway patrol to serve out a fine of $25 and costs following his arrest for reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

Denney was charged with driving his automobile into the car of Roy Schooley of Adelphi Sunday night on Route 23 five miles north of South Bloomfield. The Gallia countian fled the scene, leaving his automobile there, but the patrol found him on a bus heading for Columbus.

Several persons in the Schooley car suffered minor injuries. Sheriff's office said that Denney could have been charged with any one of several complaints, but that the patrol was lenient after learning of the size of his family. His hearing was in the court of Squire Elmer Malone, Ashville.

THREE SURVIVE 83 DAYS ADRIFT

oil drums. Sharks trailed it for days at a time.

The survivors said only two life-boats had been launched from the sinking vessel. Sharks apparently attacked a number of the crew and passengers as they swam about the ship looking for pieces of wreckage to cling to.

There was enough food and water aboard the raft to last the five men 16 days with careful hoarding.

"But we were so sure we would be rescued that we fed hardtack to birds the first few days," said Izzi. "We came to regret this."

The drifters caught a small shark by lassoing it with a rope. Fifteen unwary birds were captured and eaten and their entrails used to lure fish near enough to snatch them from the sea.

Sea snails that attached themselves to the raft were promptly devoured, and drifting seaweed was thankfully hauled aboard and chewed.

Fortunately a 10-day period was the longest in which there was no rain.

WHAT OF FRANCE?
IT BEGINS to look as if France, historic friend of America, will have a chance for national resurrection. And what will she do with it? The answer to that question is important to France and the world.

American attention lately has been directed to French North Africa, a region which is to European France somewhat as the American colonies were to England before the American revolution. The situation there, under the patient efforts of General Giraud, General de Gaulle and other patriotic Frenchmen, slowly improves. Colonial France apparently is saved from hostile seizure or internal collapse. But what of Mother France in Europe?

That once great nation has sunk to its lowest depth in history. Presumably it will regain its freedom as a result of German defeat by the Allied Nations. And indeed, Frenchmen in Africa and elsewhere are bearing an honorable part in administering that defeat. But what of the bulk of the French nation within the normal boundaries of European France? Can they rise again as an international power, cooperating in the development of a brave new world?

Presumably they can—if they will be patriots first and individual Frenchmen afterward. France cannot rise again if the French people still insist on having two or three dozen parties, all playing personal and group politics and working at cross purposes. France needs a new birth of political unity and cooperation. And now, if ever, is the time for it.

JAP SURRENDER
SOME of the Japanese soldiers have been surrendering lately, contrary to their tradition and custom. Such incidents have mostly occurred after long and exhausting fighting, when they were starving. They were also impelled to such action by reports of good treatment for Japanese prisoners. It looks as if the Spartan "No Surrender" motto of these foes has begun to break down.

If so, this is an important achievement. It is more useful to gain Japanese confidence in American sportsmanship than to kill Japs indiscriminately. Any suggestion of undue "softness" on the part of Americans, in their relations with this enemy, would be unfortunate; Americans can neither defeat them nor gain their respect unless our fighting men are as hard as they are. But if, along with a respect-compelling toughness, American fighters can get across to their enemies the more humane ideals of chivalry that exist in the western world, it will be good for both nations in the long run.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour
Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
Up early on a clear morning, and having plenty of time did dawdle over the morning prints and coffee. Nothing of particular interest except the shortage of advertising. If this keeps up newspaper owners soon will have to find something to use in the place of money, for they just will be without that necessity.

Later in the day did read Eddie Rickenbacker's proposal for the drafting of men for industry and agriculture, they to be trained by the army and navy, sent where needed and not required to join any union. Would still be in the service even though working. And his proposal that service records be kept of everyone in civilian life the same as those in actual military service. Seems as though Eddie is intent on getting things done. His proposal is much like the one advanced by the American Legion shortly after the 1918 Armistice. Only the American Legion would have drafted everything. Everyone would have been in the service. All profits in all kinds of business would have gone to the government. Wages and salaries would have been cut to service levels. That would have prevented strikes, would have prevented inflation, would have financed the war. But the politicians voted it right out.

Then came the story from Washington about the labor draft bill proposed in both branches of the congress, a bill that if it becomes law will put the workers where they are most needed. Looks like a lot of sense to me. This is war and we just can't continue as we do in peace times. Maybe we are about to get over the idea that the other fellow will win this war for us.

I got a chuckle out of it even though the story is a little late. Jake Scharenberg fed a hen pheasant and her dozen and a half chicks all of the late Summer and through the Fall. They appeared regularly when he fed his hogs. Jake eyed them daily and considered what great eating the roosters would make when the hunting season opened. It finally did, and on that morning Jake went out with his shotgun. The pheasants were there and his desire for a roast bird had not lessened, but he just did not have the heart to shoot. The next morning he definitely made up his mind to get a couple of birds. Again he shouldered his gun and went out. The pheasants were not there. He has not seen them since.

Recalled the speech by Herbert Hoover in which he made the statement that the only profession giving to the war effort the only thing it has to sell is that of the theatre and films. Wonder what Herbert thinks the newspapers have to sell besides white space, and whether he is aware that the government has yet to pay for the first advertisement of the millions of dollars worth that the publishers have given to the government, starting even before Pearl Harbor? Strange it is that everyone seems to think it is only right and proper that papers give away the one and only thing they can sell. Everyone asks for space; most of them get it.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

FDR TELLS OF UNREST

WASHINGTON — Immediately after his return from North Africa, the President summoned Congressional leaders to the White House for what they all later described as a "highly confidential" meeting.

Fact is, however, that most of the things FDR told Congressional leaders that day, off the record, he told his press conference next day—for publication.

There were details about the way the Firestone Rubber Company is double-tapping rubber on its Liberia plantation, the way Roosevelt celebrated his birthday, with cake and candles in the plane 8,000 feet over Haiti, and the story about the President's being so comfortable in Casablanca that he didn't want to move, in spite of advice that the conference should shift locale from day to day for safety's sake.

But there were at least a few things the President included in his talk with Congressmen which were not revealed to the press. One was the touchy problem of civilian unrest and possible revolt among the native population, mostly Arabs. The President pointed out the danger of such an outbreak to our military operations. It would be like having hostile action on the rear flank, he said.

The other matter which the President discussed with Congressional leaders was the Tolan-Kilgore-Pepper bill creating a centralized civilian reorganization for the War Production Board and the production powers of the Army and Navy.

The President backed up the Army and Navy, said he was emphatically opposed to the bill, and asked for Congressional support in defeating it.

If the bill passed, of course, it would be tantamount to Congress stepping in and telling the Executive that the production end of the war was not being run efficiently. The Army and Navy, especially the former, have been bringing all sorts of pressure to block passage of the bill, which would place their production entirely under civilian control.

Note: The President's report on Arab unrest checks with that of OWI's Milton Eisenhower, brother of the General, recently returned from North Africa.

He needs a dozen or two infants for scenes in the Russian picture, "The North Star," but mothers in middle-class maternity hospitals are not cooperating as they used to. 1943 Campaign Against Infantile Paralysis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

LAST January 30th was the anniversary of the President's birthday, and marked the tenth annual celebration of the general campaign against infantile paralysis. The President again generously allowed this date to be used and indicated his enlightened interest in the campaign by pointing out how undesirable it would be on account of war conditions to allow any slip-up or cessation of our activities against the enemies on our home front—especially this dreaded and crippling disease which affects mostly young boys and girls.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In spite of the many researches by laboratory technicians, public health officials and bacteriologists, we are not yet completely certain of the nature of the cause of infantile paralysis. We believe it to be a virus, but the virus diseases are, of all the infections, the most resistant to treatment and prevention with immune substances.

As yet we certainly have no serum for the prevention or any antidote for the treatment of this disease.

Recent Advances

Such advances as have been made have been more by clinical observations than by laboratory work. I refer to the reports on the possibility of the contamination of swimming water at river mouths and in brackish pools. Any stream or body of water in which sewage is dumped is infected for swimming and bathing for several miles from the place where the contamination occurs.

Another advance which has been widely publicized is the Kenny method of treating the acute stage. I know of no orthopedic surgeon who seriously considers that these methods have not improved our results and made marked limitations in the extent of the paralysis. The Kenny method consists in relieving muscle spasm and encouraging movement of the muscles as soon after the acute stage as possible and it is often possible during the acute stage.

Various Methods

At the same time the Kenny method must not be supposed to be a 100 per cent cure in all cases. Even when taken at the earliest possible moment and carried out with the best technique, there still remains in some cases some residual paralysis.

For the treatment of these cases we fall back on the old methods that have been in use by orthopedic surgeons for many years. These consist in bracing, muscle surgery by the use of transplants and cutting the tendons of the muscles in spasm. These methods must still be used in some cases and are still valuable and will continue to be part of the armamentarium of the profession against the deformities and disabilities of this disease.

The Kenny treatment should be carried out by trained technicians who have had an opportunity of studying this method at the source. Most hospitals of any size at the present time employ technicians of this sort and there are few communities which need to go without the benefit of the Kenny treatment should an epidemic occur.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. J.:—Will you please tell me the cause of boils? I have had eight before they finally cleared up.

Answer: Boils are due to infection of the skin with one of the pus-forming germs. They usually come in crops. They are sometimes helped by exposure to the x-ray and sometimes by vaccines made from the active germ.

Where Contentment Lies

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries.

JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake hurries after her while she is on a business trip to California.

DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, who himself had entertained hopes the Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is.

HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free crowd as Jake.

YESTERDAY: Upon her return to work after her honeymoon, Kay finds problems already facing her, with one of her assistants resigning. She tells David that she has no intention of giving up her own job "unless you want me to."

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

KAY DIDN'T know what she would do if David wanted her to resign from McClure's. Jake's income wouldn't even cover their rent. Besides honestly enjoying the actual excitement of the work, she was definitely luxury minded.

"You know I don't want you to give up your job," David assured her, looking her straight in the eye. She felt a slow flush mount her cheeks. She was beginning to wonder whether working with David was going to be difficult after that night in Santa Barbara when he had proposed.

But she had nothing to worry about. In the weeks that followed David acted just as he always had, kind, pleasant and entirely impersonal. The hunt for a new assistant took longer than they had anticipated. For a time Kay had no assistant at all, which meant extra work at any time, and was especially hard in the fall, when the store was preparing for Christmas business.

She often stayed late at night or brought work home with her. Jake spent two or three nights a week down at his place. Kay would take a taxi down there when she had finished her work, about 10:30 or 11 o'clock, and they would walk home together, arm in arm.

Jake adored tramping the streets of New York at night. Kay used to consider two blocks a long walk. But she soon found the same fascination in exploring the city that Jake did. They never took the same streets twice. They stopped in at little bars for a nightcap. They talked. They were alone together. Those few hours were about the only times they were alone and able to talk.

They were in great demand socially, both by Kay's friends and by Jake's. They went down to Het's every Friday night that Kay could get away. That crowd had impromptu parties several times a week. They had to turn down more invitations than they could accept. Each week was an endless round of cocktail parties, dinners, concerts, theaters, work and more and more work. Jake apparently liked it. But he usually slept all morning.

It was fun to see the piles of gifts melt away from the counters, to see the sales figures at night, to see the special purchases that had been planned and bought weeks before disappearing in a few days. Everyone was keyed up, infected by the general excitement. You never felt tired during the day, there was too much to see, too much to do. But when you had left the store, grabbed a taxi, lit that cigaret you had been dying for for the last three hours, then you gave in like a banged, blown-up paper bag. Every nerve ached and was tense. All you could think of was a hot tub and cool linen sheets.

Kay didn't go down at night and meet Jake any more. She walked enough during the day. The nights he worked she went to bed, was usually asleep when he got home. Jake didn't work as much at nights now, either.

There was a deluge of Christmas parties. Kay didn't want Jake to go without her. The evenings were her's and Jake's. She never could be sure what time she'd be able to get away from the store, so they

WHAT OF FRANCE?

IT BEGINS to look as if France, historic friend of America, will have a chance for national resurrection. And what will she do with it? The answer to that question is important to France and the world.

American attention lately has been directed to French North Africa, a region which is to European France somewhat as the American colonies were to England before the American revolution. The situation there, under the patient efforts of General Giraud, General de Gaulle and other patriotic Frenchmen, slowly improves. Colonial France apparently is saved from hostile seizure or internal collapse. But what of Mother France in Europe?

That once great nation has sunk to its lowest depth in history. Presumably it will regain its freedom as a result of German defeat by the Allied Nations. And indeed, Frenchmen in Africa and elsewhere are bearing an honorable part in administering that defeat. But what of the bulk of the French nation within the normal boundaries of European France? Can they rise again as an international power, cooperating in the development of a brave new world?

Presumably they can—if they will be patriots first and individual Frenchmen afterward. France cannot rise again if the French people still insist on having two or three dozen parties, all playing personal and group politics and working at cross purposes. France needs a new birth of political unity and cooperation. And now, if ever, is the time for it.

JAP SURRENDER

SOME of the Japanese soldiers have been surrendering lately, contrary to their tradition and custom. Such incidents have mostly occurred after long and exhausting fighting, when they were starving. They were also impelled to such action by reports of good treatment for Japanese prisoners. It looks as if the Spartan "No Surrender" motto of these foes has begun to break down.

If so, this is an important achievement. It is more useful to gain Japanese confidence in American sportsmanship than to kill Japs indiscriminately. Any suggestion of undue "softness" on the part of Americans, in their relations with this enemy, would be unfortunate; Americans can neither defeat them nor gain their respect unless our fighting men are as hard as they are. But if, along with a respect-compelling toughness, American fighters can get across to their enemies the more humane ideals of chivalry that exist in the western world, it will be good for both nations in the long run.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up early on a clear morning, and having plenty of time did dawdle over the morning prints and coffee. Nothing of particular interest except the shortage of advertising. If this keeps up newspaper owners soon will have to find something to use in the place of money, for they just will be without that necessity.

Later in the day did read Eddie Rickenbacker's proposal for the drafting of men for industry and agriculture, they to be trained by the army and navy, sent where needed and not required to join any union. Would still be in the service even though working. And his proposal that service records be kept of everyone in civilian life the same as those in actual military service. Seems as though Eddie is intent on getting things done. His proposal is much like the one advanced by the American Legion shortly after the 1918 Armistice. Only the American Legion would have drafted everything. Everyone would have been in the service. All profits in all kinds of business would have gone to the government. Wages and salaries would have been cut to service levels. That would have prevented strikes, would have prevented inflation, would have financed the war. But the politicians voted it right out.

Then came the story from Washington about the labor draft bill proposed in both branches of the congress, a bill that if it becomes law will put the workers where they are most needed. Looks like a lot of sense to me. This is war and we just can not continue as we do in peace times. Maybe we are about to get over the idea that the other fellow will win this war for us.

I got a chuckle out of it even though the story is a little late. Jake Scharenberg fed a hen pheasant and her dozen and a half chicks all of the late Summer and through the Fall. They appeared regularly when he fed his hogs. Jake eyed them daily and considered what great eating the coosters would make

FDR TELLS OF UNREST

WASHINGTON — Immediately after his return from North Africa, the President summoned Congressional leaders to the White House for what they all later described as a "highly confidential" meeting.

Fact is, however, that most of the things FDR told Congressional leaders that day, off the record, he told his press conference next day—for publication.

There were details about the way the Firestone Rubber Company is double-tapping rubber on its Liberia plantation, the way Roosevelt celebrated his birthday, with cake and candles in the plane 8,000 feet over Haiti, and the story about the President's being so comfortable in Casablanca that he didn't want to move, in spite of advice that the conference should shift locale from day to day for safety's sake.

But there were at least a few things the President included in his talk with Congressmen which were not revealed to the press. One was the touchy problem of civilian unrest and possible revolt among the native population, mostly Arabs. The President pointed out the danger of such an outbreak to our military operations. It would be like having hostile action on the rear flank, he said.

The other matter which the President discussed with Congressional leaders was the Tolan-Kilgore-Pepper bill creating a centralized civilian reorganization for the War Production Board and the production powers of the Army and Navy.

The President backed up the Army and Navy, said he was emphatically opposed to the bill, and asked for Congressional support in defeating it.

If the bill passed, of course, it would be tantamount to Congress stepping in and telling the Executive that the production end of the war was not being run efficiently. The Army and Navy, especially the former, have been bringing all sorts of pressure to block passage of the bill, which would place their production entirely under civilian control.

Note: The President's report on Arab unrest checks with that of OWI's Milton Eisenhower, brother of the General, recently returned from North Africa.

He needs a dozen or two infants for scenes in the Russian picture, "The North Star," but mothers in middle-class maternity hospitals are not cooperating as they used to. Prosperity is so general that these mothers no longer jump at the $75 rental fee for new-borns. . . . There's likewise a camel shortage, due to demand for North African pictures. OPA neglected to put a ceiling on camels, and their rental has risen from $15 to $25 a day. . . . Both staunch New Dealers, Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, has been panning Senator Claude Pepper behind his back. . . . Republicans are saying that the fact that FDR, at the Casablanca conference, settled vital matters of military, naval, diplomatic strategy without "Three Old Men" of his cabinet, shows how totally unimportant the cabinet is. The Secretaries of State, War and Navy—Hull, Stimson and Knox—apparently had nothing to say about it. . . . The Roosevelt-Vargas meeting in Brazil makes a phropheut out

1943 Campaign Against Infantile Paralysis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

LAST January 30th was the anniversary of the President's birthday, and marked the tenth annual celebration of the general campaign against infantile paralysis. The President again generously allowed this date to be used and indicated his enlightened interest in the campaign by pointing out how unadvisable it would be on account of war conditions to allow any slip-up or cessation of our activities against the enemies on our home front—especially this dreaded and crippling disease which affects mostly young boys and girls.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In spite of the many researches by laboratory technicians, public health officials and bacteriologists, we are not yet completely certain of the nature of the cause of infantile paralysis. We believe it to be a virus, but the virus diseases are, of all the infections, the most resistant to treatment and prevention with immune substances.

As yet we certainly have no serum for the prevention or any antidote for the treatment of this disease.

Recent Advances

Such advances as have been made have been more by clinical observations than by laboratory work. I refer to the reports on the possibility of the contamination of swimming water at river mouths and in brackish pools. Any stream or body of water in which sewage is dumped is infected for swimming and bathing for several miles from the place where the contamination occurs.

Another advance which has been widely publicized is the Kenny method of treating the acute stage. I know of no orthopedic surgeon who seriously considers that these methods have not improved our results and made marked limitations in the extent of the paralysis. The Kenny method consists in relieving muscle spasm and encouraging movement of the muscles as soon after the acute stage as possible and it is often possible during the acute stage.

Various Methods

At the same time the Kenny method must not be supposed to be a 100 per cent cure in all cases. Even when taken at the earliest possible moment and carried out with the best technique, there still remains in some cases some residual paralysis.

For the treatment of these cases we fall back on the old methods that have been in use by orthopedic surgeons for many years. These consist in bracing, muscle surgery by the use of transplants and cutting the tendons of the muscles in spasm. These methods must still be used in some cases and are still valuable and will continue to be part of the armamentarium of the profession against the deformities and disabilities of this disease.

The Kenny treatment should be carried out by trained technicians who have had an opportunity of studying this method at the source. Most hospitals of any size at the present time employ technicians of this sort and there are few communities which need to go without the benefit of the Kenny treatment should an epidemic occur.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. J.:—Will you please tell me the cause of boils? I have had eight before they finally cleared up.

Answer: Boils are due to infection of the skin with one of the pus-forming germs. They usually come in crops. They are sometimes helped by exposure to the x-ray and sometimes by vaccines made from the active germ.

SYNOPSIS

KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake hurries after her while she is on a business trip to California with DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, who himself had entertained hopes that Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free mood as Jake.

YESTERDAY: Upon her return to work after her honeymoon, Kay finds problems already facing her, with one of her assistants resigning. She tells David that she has no intention of giving up her own job "unless you want me to."

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

KAY DIDN'T know what she would do if David wanted her to resign from McClure's. Jake's income wouldn't even cover their rent. Besides honestly enjoying the actual excitement of the work, she was definitely luxury minded.

"You know I don't want you to give up your job," David assured her, looking her straight in the eye. She felt a slow flush mount her cheeks. She was beginning to wonder whether working with David was going to be difficult after that night in Santa Barbara when he had proposed.

But she had nothing to worry about. In the weeks that followed David acted just as he always had, kind, pleasant, and entirely impersonal. The hunt for a new assistant took longer than they had anticipated. For a time Kay had no assistant at all, which meant extra work at any time, and was especially hard in the fall, when the store was preparing for Christmas business.

She often stayed late at night or brought work home with her. Jake spent two or three nights a week down at his place. Kay would take a taxi down there when she had finished her work, about 10:30 or 11 o'clock, and they would walk home together, arm in arm.

Jake adored tramping the streets of New York at night. Kay used to consider two blocks a long walk. But she soon found the same fascination in exploring the city that Jake did. They never took the same streets twice. They stopped in at little bars for a nightcap. They talked. They were alone together. Those few hours were about the only times they were alone and able to talk.

They were in great demand socially, both by Kay's friends and by Jake's. They went down to Het's every Friday night that Kay could get away. That crowd had impromptu parties several times a week. They had to turn down more invitations than they could accept.

Each week was an endless round of cocktail parties, dinners, concerts, theaters, work and more work. Jake apparently liked it. But he usually slept all morning. Kay got thinner than ever, and the dark circles under her eyes became permanent.

So had Anna's scowl. "Miss Kay, I don't care if you do scold me. You've got to get more rest." Kay was having her breakfast one morning in early December. "You know what the store is like during the Christmas rush, even if Mr. Kerr doesn't. Last year you never went out at all except on Saturday nights."

It was true. Last December she had her dinner in bed on a tray, read for an hour or two, and slept nine hours. Then she felt rested and fresh in the morning. But then she didn't have Jake. Her heart warmed. Jake was more restless than she was. Jake liked parties, staying up late, always having something to do. She couldn't picture him holding the hand of a wife who was eating a poached egg on a tray in bed. No. She'd get through all right, somehow.

"You worry about me too much, Anna," she said, not unkindly. "Somebody should. Oh, I know you aren't going to pay any heed to me." There were tears in Anna's eyes. "I've known you longer than Mr. Kerr has. I know you've got precious little strength. You're like your mother."

Kay rose from the table. "It's getting late and I've got to hurry. I feel fine and I've never been happier in my life. I'll be all right. You wait and see." When Anna had gone to order a taxi for her, Kay took a couple of aspirins. She had begun having persistent headaches, and had to take aspirin once or twice every day. After Christmas she'd have her eye tested.

The Christmas decorations set the keynote for the whole store. Gay and colorful and hectic. Kay liked the Christmas crowds. She liked to push her way through them. They were cheerful, good-natured, patient, spent their money freely and with good will.

It was fun to see the piles of gifts melt away from the counters, to see the sales figures at night, to see the special purchases that had been planned and bought weeks before disappear in a few days. Everyone was keyed up, infected by the general excitement. Kay never felt tired during the day, there was too much to see, too much to do. But when she had left the store, grabbed a taxi, lit that cigaret who had been dying for for the last three hours, then you gave in like a banged, blown-up paper bag. Every nerve ached and was tense. All you could think of was a hot tub and cool linen sheets.

Kay didn't go down at night and meet Jake any more. She walked enough during the day. The nights he worked she went to bed, was usually asleep when he got home. Jake didn't work as much at nights now, either.

There was a deluge of Christmas parties. Kay didn't want Jake to go without her. The evenings were her's and Jake's. She never could be sure what time she'd be able to get away from the store, so they didn't accept any dinner invitations. Jake would be waiting for her at home. Anna would have a hot dinner ready, then Jake would sit in her room and talk to her through the bathroom door while she dressed.

Then they'd be off. Until 1 or 2 or 3 o'clock. Jake stunning in his evening clothes. Kay getting a sense of smug satisfaction from other women's envy that amused her.

Two days before Christmas, while she stood talking to the glove buyer, she collapsed.

A customer carried her up to her office on the balcony. She was so light she was easy to carry. Mary was frantic, called David in desperation. He got there just as Kay was beginning to come to. He looked sick with worry.

"What happened?" he asked Mary in a low voice.

"Miss Hansing said Miss Stevens just turned white and fainted dead away." Mary was still out of breath.

"Has anything special turned up to upset her?"

"Not that I know of." Kay stirred her head, opened her eyes. She tried to get up, but David stopped her with a hand on her shoulder. She held her head. "I feel giddy," she said with concern.

"Sit still," said David. "You just fainted. Gave us all a terrible scare."

"Fainted? I've never done that before," Kay said with a wan smile.

"Feel any better now?"

"My head feels clear enough. But I'm not sure where my legs are." David turned to Mary. "Bring me Miss Stevens' hat and coat, and call my secretary for me. Then go down and have a taxi ready."

"I can't go home, David. I've got too much work to do," Kay protested weakly.

"You'll do what I say." He put Kay's things on. He was surprisingly gentle for such a big man. "Do you feel strong enough to walk downstairs?"

"I think so." Her head whirled when she stood up. David put his arm around her for support.

"Do you want me to call one of the store doctors?" he asked.

"No. Please don't. I don't need one. It was hot down on the floor. And I didn't have much breakfast."

"Yes, of course," David didn't want to upset her. The first thing to do was to get her home and in bed.

The cold air braced her a little, but she thought they would never reach the apartment. The pain in her head was intolerable.

"You needn't have come with me," she told David. If she were alone she could lean her head against the back of the seat. It felt so heavy. Now it didn't feel so heavy, but everything was spinning around. "Oh, this is horrible, this spinning must stop, now everything is fading away, going black."

Hints on Etiquette

When your little child has been walking in the wet, and you take

Today's Horoscope

People born today have excellent inherent possibilities, but they will be obliged to toil faithfully to attain success. They possess the power of concentration on their work, and are generous and sympathetic toward others. They are devoted to their loved ones. If these people are awake very early on this day, they should think about the best way to make their families feel happy and gay. Since it is never out of season for some people to have an axe to grind, these folk should not give anyone the opening to use them for ulterior purposes. They may be introduced to interesting persons on this birthday morning. They should not make caustic remarks that can hurt the feelings of friends. Their estimates of expenses may prove inaccurate.

One-Minute Test Answers

Von Bora Society Plans Part in World Prayer

Other Churches Invited To Participate

Participation in observance of "World Day of Prayer Service" was again voted unanimously by members of the Von Bora society at the meeting Monday in Trinity Lutheran parish house. Plans were made to invite the women of St. Paul Lutheran church, Ashville Route 1, and the women of the Ashville and Lockbourne Lutheran churches to join women of the society in this annual prayer service to be held Friday, March 12, at Trinity Lutheran church. If these invitations are accepted, all women of the Circleville community will be asked to join in this timely service.

The hymns, "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and "Lead Kindly Light", were sung following the opening scripture reading and prayer. Mrs. John Walters and Mrs. Cora Wernich read the topic, "Prayer, Impellent for Building."

A report of the meeting of the executive board of the Women's Federation held in Columbus was presented by Mrs. Frank Turner. Two poems, "Lincoln" and "Washington," were read by Mrs. Luther Bower. Members of the society took part in a lively informal Spelling Bee which concluded the program.

Lunch was served by Miss Mary Heffner, Mrs. Frank Turner, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. Erma Fox and Miss Flora Palm, members of the February social committee.

Daughters of 1812
Major John Boggs chapter, Daughters of 1812, met Monday at the home of Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Pinckney street. At the January session of the chapter, Mrs. Orion King was inducted as a candidate for state president of the Daughters of 1812 and Mrs. Charles H. May received the chapter indorsement for the state corresponding secretary. Mrs. Bryce Briggs was inducted by the chapter as a candidate for state treasurer and Mrs. Charles Pugsley, state registrar, at the Monday session.

Mrs. H. O. Pile, president, conducted the ritualistic opening of the meeting and the salute to the flag. Miss Florence Dunton, treasurer, reported.

Delegates to the state council to be held in Columbus on March 18 and 19, include Mrs. King, Mrs. Briggs, Mrs. May and Mrs. Pugsley. Alternates include Mrs. Noah Spangler, Mrs. Hornbeck, Mrs. A. E. Herrstein and Miss Florence Dunton.

Mrs. George E. Roth presented a splendid paper on "Sea Battles of 1812."

Walnut P.T.A.

Mrs. Harold Fisher will represent Walnut township Parent-Teacher association as delegate to the coming convention of the State P.T.A. at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus. She was elected Monday at the meeting in Walnut township school by a representative group in attendance at the regular session of the association. The short-business meeting in charge of Harold Fisher, president, followed the devotionals conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mickey.

Group singing of patriotic songs opened the program which featured an address by Mrs. Wagner, chairman of the central district of the state P.T.A. She was heard in a stirring and informative talk on the subject, "Founders' Day."

Accorded duet by Helen Louise Dennis and Anne Klingensmith concluded the meeting. Refreshments appropriate to the season were served at attractively decorated tables.

Home Nursing

Classes in Home Nursing will begin training Tuesday in the class room in the Veterans of Foreign War club house, North Court street. Afternoon classes on Tuesday and Thursday will be called to order at 2 o'clock and the evening classes at 7:30 on the same days. Mrs. Christian Schwarz and Mrs. W. A. matron of honor and only attendant for her sister was dressed in light blue corded crepe with black accessories and had a corsage of red rose buds. Arthur Brooks served as best man for Mr. Diltz.

The former Miss Woodward attended Circleville high school and until recently was employed at the Crist Department store. Private Diltz is stationed at Patterson field, Fairfield. For the present, the new Mrs. Diltz will live with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward were hosts at a reception at their home on Thursday evening. A red, white and blue color scheme was used in the home and a lovely three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, centered the refreshment table.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward Jr. and daughter, Sue, of Lebanon, Ind., were out-of-town guests at the reception which was attended by relatives and close friends of the Circleville community.

Parish Supper

Members of the congregation of St. Philip's Episcopal church will enjoy a cooperative parish supper Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in the church parish house.

Papyrus Club

Spring flowers decorated the home of Mrs. E. O. Crites, North Court street, for the Monday guest night meeting of the Papyrus club. Outstanding in excellence was the review of the book, "The Song of Bernadette", presented as the program feature by Miss Margaret Rooney. Miss Rooney showed deep thoughtfulness in her fine criticism and read many excerpts from the book in rounding out her splendid discussion.

Mrs. Marion Lutz lead the meeting and the members responded to

A Teen Apron Frock

THIS is one of the Russian motif frocks recently designed by a young American for girls from six to fourteen sizes. Not an apron separate from the dress beneath, but a dress made apron style is its fashion. The model is colorful and practical, and its full skirt, high apron bib and tie strings behind guarantee its becomingness to growing girls who may be on the string bean side, or those who belong to the roly-poly group of adolescents.

Have to hand a big bunch of posies to the one who is responsible for constructing the new groundhog version of Spring is here when he lands in the sunshine on the morning of February 2. Yesterday was mild and sunny and may the new version prove a true one and stay put. And if it were not for sounding a sour note, we'd warn that it is only February 9. But Old Sol will soon be away from the South bumper a couple of months and is coming on fine, if someone don't change time on him and mess up things for the old boy.

All of which reminds us of meeting Township Trustee and bee man Harry Roese yesterday, who told us that his some thirty colonies of bees are flying out in this sunshine looking things over, he thinks. But he has discovered that the honey collectors must be fed to tide them over until nectar producing flowers come into bloom and production. Inquiring about the sort of feed he prepares for his little pets, he told us that a pound of granulated sugar diluted to a syrup by adding a pint of water, makes a fine feed and the little workers store it away into the honey cells for use as they need it. Too, he intends to make one strong colony by combining two weak ones. Bees are easy to handle if once you know how, he said. Leaving bee man Roese to the same individual as township trustee, he told us there were quite a few bad road spots in the township and that these were being made better fast they could be repaired.

Our seasoned hotel manager, Clarence Kern, here for a couple of days at the home of his mother, Mrs. Minnie Snyder, left yesterday for a hostelry located in Toledo. He has managed hotels several years, being at one spot in Chicago for seven years.

Miss Lulu Garner, a local nurse, is in Columbus at the home of George and Mrs. Gallagher caring for Mrs. Gallagher, reported seriously sick. . . Mrs. Bessie Hoy Weeks same city is reported critically ill. Both these named ones are former residents here.

A sizable dwelling real estate deal is reliably reported today. Walter Morrison and wife have sold their dwelling property on Scioto street to William Peer along Walnut creek in Walnut township. The Peers will remove here in the near future.

The school board which has to do with the local grade schools will be in session at the school building this evening for sure paying bills as a part of their business.

A considerable number of snowy white and chirping chicks arrived at the local postoffice Friday and on out into their brooder house home somewhere across the river in Robtown territory. If these get for cats that good radio feed stuff you hear about most every day, they should be fine for fries by Easter—April 25.

Von Bora Society Plans Part in World Prayer

Other Churches Invited To Participate

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Participation in observance of "World Day of Prayer Service" was again voted unanimously by members of the Von Bora society at the meeting Monday in Trinity Lutheran parish house. Plans were made to invite the women of St. Paul Lutheran church, Ashville Route 1, and the women of the Ashville and Lockbourne Lutheran churches to join women of the society in this annual prayer service to be held Friday, March 12, at Trinity Lutheran church. If these invitations are accepted, all women of the Circleville community will be asked to join in this timely service.

The hymns, "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and "Lead Kindly Light," were sung following the opening scripture reading and prayer. Mrs. John Walters and Mrs. Cora Wenrich read the topic, "Prayer, Implement for Building."

A report of the meeting of the executive board of the Women's Federation held in Columbus was presented by Mrs. Frank Turner. Two poems, "Lincoln" and "Washington," were read by Mrs. Luther Bower. Members of the society took part in a lively informal Spelling Bee which concluded the program.

Lunch was served by Miss Mary Heffner, Mrs. Frank Turner, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. Erma Fox and Miss Flora Palm, members of the February social committee.

Daughters of 1812

Major John Boggs chapter, Daughters of 1812, met Monday at the home of Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Pinckney street. At the January session of the chapter, Mrs. Orion King was endorsed as a candidate for state president of the Daughters of 1812 and Mrs. Charles H. May received the chapter endorsement for the state corresponding secretary. Mrs. Bryce Briggs was endorsed by the chapter as a candidate for state treasurer and Mrs. Charles Pugsley, state registrar, at the Monday session.

Mrs. H. O. Pile, president, conducted the ritualistic opening of the meeting and the salute to the flag. Miss Florence Dunton, treasurer, reported.

Delegates to the state council to be held in Columbus on March 18 and 19, include Mrs. King, Mrs. Briggs, Mrs. May and Mrs. Pugsley. Alternates include Mrs. Noah Spangler, Mrs. Hornbeck, Mrs. A. E. Herrstein and Miss Florence Dunton.

Mrs. George E. Roth presented a splendid paper on "Sea Battles of 1812."

Walnut P.T.A.

Mrs. Harold Fisher will represent Walnut township Parent-Teacher association as delegate to the coming convention of the State P.T.A. at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus. She was elected Monday at the meeting in Walnut township school by a representative group in attendance at the regular session of the association. The short-business meeting in charge of Harold Fisher, president, followed the devotionals conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mickey.

Group singing of patriotic songs opened the program which featured an address by Mrs. Wagner, chairman of the central district of the state P.T.A. She was heard in a stirring and informative talk on the subject, "Founders' Day."

Accorded duet by Helen Louise Dennis and Anne Klingensmith concluded the meeting.

Refreshments appropriate to the season were served at attractively decorated tables.

Home Nursing

Classes in Home Nursing will begin training Tuesday in the class room in the Veterans of Foreign War club house, North Court street. Afternoon classes on Tuesday and Thursday will be called to order at 2 o'clock and the evening classes at 7:30 on the same days. Mrs. Christian Schwarz and Mrs. W. A. Thomas, registered nurses, will be instructors.

Diltz-Woodward

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward of 951 South Pickaway street are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Norma Maxine, to Private Ralph Diltz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Diltz of Circleville Route 1. The informal wedding was solemnized February 4 at the parsonage of the United Brethren church of Chillicothe, with the Rev. Mr. White officiating. The ceremony was read at noon.

The bride wore a trim suit of aqua wool with black accessories and her corsage was of pink rose buds. Mrs. Arthur Brooks as

MARYLAND TRACKS MAY COMBINE RACE PLANS

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 9.—Following cancellation of horse-racing at the Bowie track this year, Maryland racing authorities today considered a suggestion that Bowie and other Maryland tracks south as Marlboro, Laurel and Havre De Grace hold their programs at Pimlico in Baltimore.

The decision to abandon racing at Bowie was a direct result of recommendations by Defense Transportation Director Eastman that tracks located away from metropolitan centers and accessible only by automobile be closed.

Joseph Farrell, spokesman for the Southern Maryland Agricultural association, said that "in view of Mr. Eastman's recent statements racing at Bowie is out of the question this year."

The Bowie track is located between Baltimore and Washington.

WISCONSIN TO GIVE UP GRAND CIRCUIT RACING

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 9.—Grand Circuit harness racing was canceled definitely today from the list of events at the 1943 Wisconsin state fair. Uncertainty about whether the fair would be held this year cost Milwaukee the five big stakes races sent here the last two years by the Trotting Horse Club of America.

Several of the events conducted here last year have been assigned to North Randall, O., where harness racing will be resumed this summer.

FIRST WAAC CAGE TEAM READY AT FT. SHERIDAN

FORT SHERIDAN, Ill., Feb. 9.—Another service team was ready for the basketball wars today, but this time it was a girls' team—the Fort Sheridan WAACS.

The Fort Sheridan outfit will play its first game—probably the first WAAC basketball game in the Midwest—tomorrow night in Waukegan, Ill., against a girls' team from North Chicago.

The WAACS have on their squad a number of players who have starred on collegiate and high school teams.

AMANDA

Corporal Albert Arter and Miss Mary Essinger of Lancaster visited Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Denzel Myers.

Private Harold Stiverson visited the last week with friends and relatives in and around Amanda.

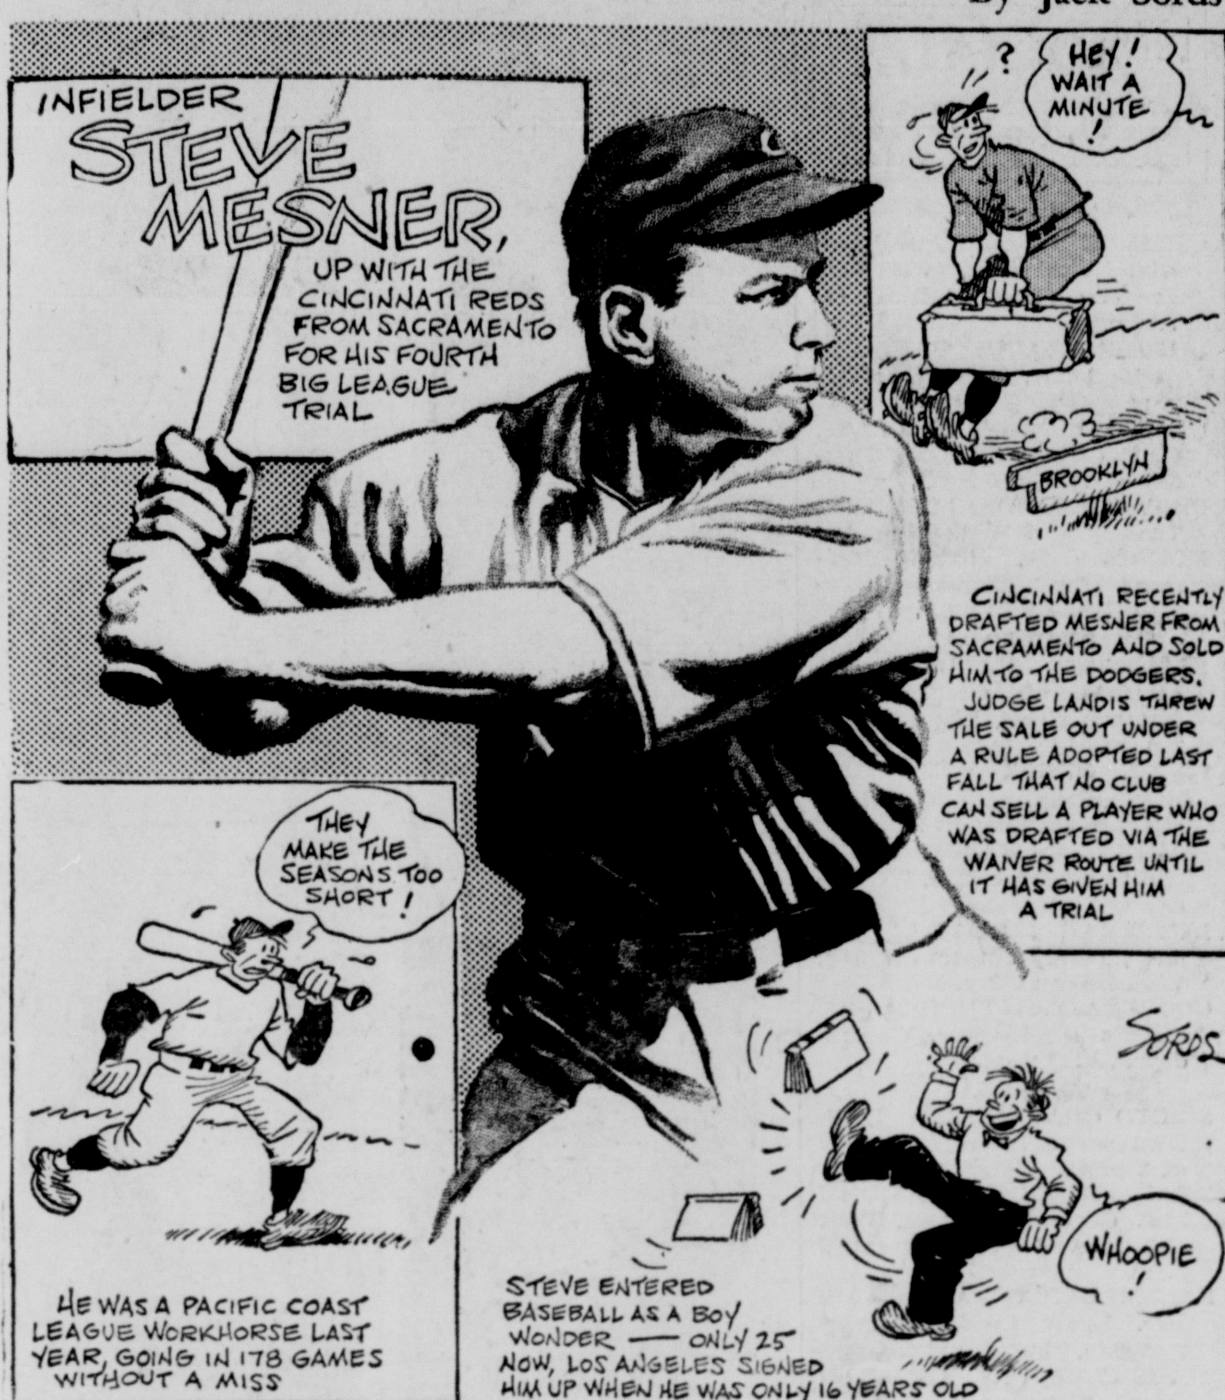

Private Stiverson was employed by Leslie Lutz before entering the army.

Miss Lillian King returned to her work at the Army Depot Monday after a week's illness at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay King.

TWO CONTRACTS SIGNED

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—The Boston Red Sox today had the signed contracts of First Basemen Ulysses Lupien and Third Basemen Rube Tabor. Terms were not announced.

DODGERS HAPPY AS AUGIE GALAN REJOINS FORCES

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—A cargo of good luck for the Brooklyn Dodgers was being gloated over today by Prexy Branch Rickey, when Augie Galan's services for 1943 came flying in on the Left Knee Limited.

Not a transcontinental railroad train, the Left Knee Limited, but part of a telegram from Galan to Rickey, telling of the former's rejection by the army, for a defect cryptically worded. "Extension and flexion of the right elbow and left knee limited."

Although the diagnosis confused Rickey, Galan probably having copied it off the physicians' report at the Berkeley, Cal., draft board, Rickey was certain of what Augie meant when he said he was placed in 4-F. The switch-hitting outfielder and infielder will probably talk his 1943 diamond prospects over with Rickey when the Brooklyn boss makes his western trip sometime around the 20th of this month.

With Galan's return, the Dodgers will have eight outfielders. In addition to Augie, the Brooklyn club has Joe Medwick, Dixie Walker, Johnny Cooney, Paul Waner, Hal Peck, Luiz Olmo and Stan Bordagaray. In all probability, Galan will fill the gap caused by the departure of Pete Reiser, star center-fielder, who was given his marching orders by Uncle Sam last month.

Augie, however, could also figure in the sparsely-populated infield. When he was with San Francisco in the Pacific coast league, he played second base and shortstop and came in with the Cubs as a key player.

After coming into the Dodgers' fold in 1941, Galan was expected to be a regular outfielder at the start of the '42 season, but fell victim to typhoid fever. Shaken by this most weakening illness, he didn't recover his full strength until late in the season.

He was valuable while substituting for Reiser after Pete dashed into the Sportsman's Park center field wall in August. Then, when Medwick fell out of the good graces of the powers that be, or were, Galan finished out the season in left.

FATE OF PHILS BEING DEBATED BY LOOP CHIEFS

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The fate of the debt-ridden Philadelphia Phils today was one of the most urgent problems to be decided at a meeting of the National League club owners.

The meeting will hear a report of its board of directors on the financial status of the Phils. The directors, Horace C. Stoneham, William E. Benswanger, Philip K. Wrigley and Robert Quinn, wrestled with the weighty problem all day yesterday and it is on their recommendation to the league meeting today that the ultimate fate of the hapless Phils rests.

While the exact indebtedness of the club isn't known, it is reported to be near $200,000. The recent sale of two players, Rube Melton to Brooklyn and Nick Etten to the Yanks brought the club $45,000 which can be applied towards its urgent debts.

Three solutions to the problem are being considered so far as is known. In one, the league would take over the franchise and install Bill Terry to run it. Another is that a Philadelphia group headed by Jack Kelly is ready to buy the club outright and assume all its debts. The remaining possibility is that Gerry Nugent, present majority owner, will be allowed to continue to run the club if he can keep it on some form of sound footing.

RED CROSS TO BENEFIT

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—A sell-out crowd is expected to contribute $17,000 to the Red Cross as the Boston Bruins tangle with the Toronto Maple Leafs in a benefit game at the garden tonight. The Leafs will be without their crack Center Syl Apps, but will show two newcomers in Defenseman Buck Jones and Center Ab Demarco.

STEVE BELLOISE WINS

HOLYOKE, Mass., Feb. 9.—Steve Belloise of the navy today had knocked out Horace Jones, Denver, Col., in the second round of the main bout of the Valley Arenas. Jones was on the canvas nine times.

Fate of Col. Winn's Derby Still in Doubt

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The public, and Matt J. Winn, will soon know whether owners and breeders of the track's bluebloods really respect tradition, or whether they lose interest when there isn't enough money around to make tradition pay. Proposed plans for the 1943 Kentucky Derby will tell the tale.

When ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman asked that the Kentucky Derby be discontinued, a statement that Col. Winn made to International News Service last November, was remembered. The derby would be run in May, he said, even if there were only "two horses to run, and a handful of people there to watch it."

That the colonel feels strongly about this, there is no doubt. It was he who guided the destinies of Churchill Downs from a track that was ready to close in 1902, to its present fame as the site of the richest three-year-old stakes race in the world. He battled opposition, managed to "wade through a reform movement that threatened to shut down the track in 1908. . . . And made the derby pay."

Proud Of Many Things
He is proud of a great many things in the derby. He points to the financial difficulties with which the track was ridden when he and three associates took it over; to its constant development and enrichment, and to the fact that the derby is now America's true race of champions. But of this he is proudest: The tradition that lies behind a string of races unbroken since 1875, when the hooves of victorious aristides began to churn at the starting signals of a drum and a flag.

This pride has been shared, he hopes, by others. To have his horse pound down the stretch at the head of the pack to win the derby has been considered by every owner as the prime achievement in racing.

But the true spirit of racing, the test of its publicized belief in tradition, will be shown in no other situation, in no other time, than as at Churchill Downs this year.

It's going to take plenty of work and trouble to get a blue-blood to the derby site, if the race is held. The transportation difficulties so lightly regarded at the beginning of the war have now reached the proportions of an almost insurmountable obstacle. In addition to this, the wealthy crowds that thronged from every corner of the United States to enrich the derby, will be missing.

As the colonel said, the derby of 1943 would be a "street car attraction." The rich purse, which mushroomed through the years to $75,000 added, would not, in great part, be there.

Transportation Problem
In these circumstances, how many owners of great horses will make an attempt to enter their animal in the derby. To haul a horse from, say, New Orleans, where many of the noble breed are gathered, to a race meeting and heavily-betting crowds, might be considered by many owners to be an imposition to be ignored.

Tradition will have lost its attraction for them, once it lost the money that went with it. Some, Col. Winn hopes, will fight like fury to get their beasts to the track, but still, he wonders, how many self-loving owners will come into view once plans for the beleaguered derby unfold?

The colonel, meanwhile, is asking no favors from anyone, including the ODT. He is willing to run the derby at a loss, when it would be simple for him to save money and strenuous effort merely by forgetting about Churchill Downs and its uninterrupted string of 68 derbies, until the problems presented by the war blow over.

But the colonel can't forget. . . .

Praise the Lord and pass the sulfanilamide! This is the healthiest war ever fought.

Jack Dugger Rings Bell 14 Times To Lead Bucks In Scoring

COLUMBUS, Feb. 8.—Illinois' 'whiz kids' returned home today with two victories added to their long string. Ohio State providing both in games played Saturday and Monday.

Last night the Illinois boys, although off a little in their shooting, gained a 50-44 decision over the battling Bucks. The win kept the Illini in a virtual tie with Indiana for the Western Conference lead. The Hoosiers, winners 48-33 over Michigan Monday night, have won eight games without a loss, while Doug Mills' boys have knocked off seven straight opponents.

Ohio State succumbed to Illinois only after a struggle, just as the Bucks did Saturday when they were defeated, 60 to 48.

Gene Fekete, Findlay native, held Andy Phillips, the Western Conference's leading scorer, to eight points two of his fielders coming on bat-in shots and two after he intercepted poorly hurled passes.

With Phillip bottled up, Capt. Art Mathisen, Illinois center, took scoring honors with 17 points. His pivot opponent, Jack Dugger, formerly of Canton and Mansfield, was high man for Ohio with 14 points.

The score at the half was 26 to 19 in favor of Illinois. In other Big Ten contests last night, Wisconsin defeated hapless Chicago, 74 to 30, and Northwestern succumbed to Great Lakes in a non-league affair, 57 to 36.

Charlie Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals baseball club of the Pacific coast league, today awaited a reply from the Boston Braves on his offer to sell Brooks Holder, 29-year-old center fielder. Holder was offered to the Braves after Bob Quinn, manager of the hard-hit Boston club, telegraphed an offer to purchase permit, star Seal slugger and outfielder.

Married, the father of a child and 3-A in the draft, Holder hit .298 in the coast league last season.

CANTOR AMBASSADOR

Eddie Cantor expects to be appointed ambassador at large to Ireland for this government, according to the script of his "Time to Smile" program over NBC Wednesday at 9 p. m. so it is no more than natural that he enlist the aid of a pretty colleen like Maureen O'Hara as an adviser. Things get complicated, though, when the Mad Russian bobs up and claims to be a son of the old sod. Cantor quick-wittedly saves the situation by singing "Hey, Good Looking," while gazing directly at Maureen. He even calls in Dinah Shore to vocal "Moonlight Becomes You" and everybody winds up in high good humor.

KYSER HOST TO NURSES

For the first time in radio, an audience will be composed entirely of nurses from the armed forces when 350 of them visit the MGM lot, where Kay Kyser is making a picture, to hear his "College of Musical Knowledge" program over NBC Wednesday at 10 p. m. Contestants on the program will be selected from among the nurses who will also appear in a scene of Kay's film.

"HOUR OF CHARM"

Visiting the Army Air Forces training school at Valley Forge, N. J., Phil Spitalny and the all-girl orchestra of the "Hour of Charm" will award a $500 War Bond to a flight cadet, during the broadcast on Sunday, February 21, at 10 p. m. over NBC. The bond will be given to the author of the best essay of 250 words or less, on how training in the historic atmosphere of Valley Forge influences the outlook of the men. FRANCIS, ROSS, LESTER

Just back from a three-month tour abroad, where she entertained our service men for the USO, Kay Francis joins with Lanny Ross, tenor master of ceremonies of the "Comedy Caravan," and Jerry Lester, comedian, in the guest star lineup on the "Stage Door Canteen," on Thursday, February 11, at 9:30 p. m. over CBS. Bert Lytell is the program's master of ceremonies, Raymond Paige conducts the "Stage Door Canteen" orchestra.

FRED ALLEN

First guest star when "Information, Please" acquires a new sponsor and moves into its new broadcast spot Monday, February 15, at 10:30 p. m., over NBC will be Comedian Fred Allen—and an hilarious time is expected. Clifton Fadiman will be master of ceremonies with the usual members of the board of experts, John Kieran, Franklin Pierce Adams and Oscar Levant participating.

BUCHANAN WITH BING

Hollywood knows Edgar Buchanan as a pretty serious actor, but radio audiences have had many a good laugh when Buchanan and Bing Crosby get together gag-acting. He'll be Crosby's guest on the Music Hall, Thursday, at 9 p. m. over NBC.

Trudy Erwin, featured songstress on the program, will do "Something to Remember You By" with Bing.

Bing's solos will be "Abraham" from his recent movie "Holiday Inn," "Among My Souvenirs," and "Moonlight Becomes You."

Newsboys Playing Important Roles in War Stamp Sales

HERALD'S BOYS COLLECT MORE THAN $26,000

Carriers Of Nation Sell Total Of 566,159,323 10-Centers In Twelve Months

HIGH MARK SET FOR 1943

Youths Gain Recognition For Outstanding Aid To War Effort

Importance of the role news-paper carriers of the nation, including those of The Circleville Herald, are playing in the nation's war effort was stressed Tuesday by Howard W. Stodghill, chairman of the newspaper advisory committee of the War Savings staff, announced that 566,159,323 10-cent War Stamps were sold in 1942.

Of this great total, more than 260,000 of the stamps were sold in Circleville by boys who daily deliver The Herald to hundreds of homes. Daily Herald carriers have collected more than $26,000 from their customers since the War Bond and Stamp drive was started.

Leading the parade of Daily Herald carriers in sale of Bonds and Stamps is Jimmy Hill whose total to date is 92,212 stamps, a total of $9,221.20. Second is Harry Briner, Jr., with $7,480.50 and third is Jimmy Lytle with $4,172.40.

All three of these youths have received honorary awards from the government for their work.

While many other boys have not reached the totals these three have attained, all are putting forth an effort to sell as many Stamps and Bonds as possible.

In revealing the achievement of newspaper boys in the nation which said was "a splendid contribution to the war effort by newspapers and their staffs," Stodghill disclosed that the committee's objective for 1943 is "the sale of one 10-cent War Stamp every week to every subscriber."

New Goal Set

Mr. Stodghill declares: "We are confident that the country's newspaper carriers who are doing their bit will do their best this year. During the last year the volume of sales amounted to better than $56,000,000. With our new goal we should reach the $70,000,000 mark easily."

Awards, patterned after the Army-Navy "E" have been setup for newspapers. Newspapers achieving the new goal of one War Stamp per subscriber per week are authorized to display in their editions a Treasury Department honor "ear", which is signed by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury. The "ear" reads that it is awarded the newspaper, its carrier boys and subscribers for their patriotic support of the War Savings Program.

A War Stamp button, across which is printed "Thanks," is also being given to the circulation staffs of the honored newspapers.

Hawaii, which has broken many War Savings sales records, again is in the leadership in the newspaper boy activity in 1942 with sales averaging two 10-cent War Stamps per subscriber. Newspapers in Rhode Island, Mississippi and Arizona equalled this achievement.

FORMER HEALTH NURSE GOES TO MICHIGAN POST

Miss Margaret Hunsicker, West Union street, will leave Circleville Wednesday for Bay City, Mich., where she will start work next Monday as itinerant nurse teacher under the state board of vocational education in the state's home and hospital nursing aid program.

Miss Hunsicker, Pickaway county public health nurse for several years, is employed by the Bay City board of education and the state department of health. During the last four months Miss Hunsicker has been taking a special public health nursing course at Western Reserve university in Cleveland.

The program, in which Michigan is pioneering, is aimed at relieving the nursing situation in the state. Persons trained through the program will be able to assume jobs as nurses' aids in various hospitals of the state, and they will also be able to do other work now requiring services of specially-trained nurses who could be of much greater service in the war effort.

Courses to be set up in Bay City will be of four months, the training provided in that time being sufficient to prepare Michigan women for the program. Miss Hunsicker said Tuesday that only eight other cities in the state have undertaken this program, but that others are falling into line in an effort to alleviate the nursing problem.

After her work has been completed in the Bay City region, Miss Hunsicker expects assignment to other areas in the state.

SALE OF SHOES REOPENS UNDER SURPRISE ORDER

OPA Officials Working On Ration "Currency" For Distribution

BOOK NO. 3 MAY BE USED

Stamp 17 Good For First Purchase Of Footwear Until June 15

Shoe sales reopened Tuesday under the surprise sugar book rationing scheme and OPA officials set to work on a permanent form of ration "currency" for the long-range distribution of civilian footwear.

It was indicated that War Ration Book No. 3, now in process of preparation, may be employed in the extension of shoe rationing beyond June 15. Stamp 17 is good for the purchase of a pair of shoes until that date, however.

Details of Book 3 have never been disclosed, but it is expected to be materially different from the current book and also Book No. 2, to be distributed late this month, which will be used to ration canned goods and meat.

OPA officials pointed out that it would be unwise to overload Ration Book 1, already used for coffee and sugar, by continuing its use for shoe purchases. Originally, a more elaborate method had been planned for shoes, but the program had to be streamlined and put into effect overnight because of a heavy buying spree.

"Ideal" Program

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown termed the shoe-rationing plan "ideal" in that it was rushed into effect without advance notice, thus preventing a wave of hoarding.

OPA officials said they did not anticipate a "run" on stores as sales reopened today after a 33-hour "freeze," since a generous ration was allowed and consumers were assured that the shoes would be there when they wanted them.

Procedure Explained

"Some rationing plans require such extensive advance preparations that we shall have to make them known before they become effective. In these cases, we shall have to continue to rely, as in the past, on the patriotism and self-restraint of the people."

Meat and canned goods rationing both required extensive preparations. OPA was forced to train 1,500,000 volunteer ration board workers, distribute millions of registration forms and prepare for the distribution of Book 2 beginning February 21.

Although canned goods rationing will get under way March 1, the OPA has not yet announced the date for opening of the meat program. Advance preparations, which are not yet completed, include the fixing of new dollars and cents price ceilings at retail levels and the establishment of standard cuts of meat.

With exception of clothing, however, virtually every major cost-of-living commodity used by the bulk of the civilian population has been brought within range of OPA's rationing powers. Reports have circulated for some time that fats and oils and dairy products are due to be rationed soon.

An OPA spokesman said that no plans would be put into process for clothing rationing "for some time to come," since present stocks are considered ample and the institution of such a program would require a tremendous amount of advance preparation.

COUNTY YOUTH ADVANCING IN TRADE TRAINING

After six weeks of machine shop training in the Columbus National Youth Administration machine shop, Charles Boltenhouse of Circleville Route 3, has been transferred to the NYA Muskingum resident center near Carrollton for 16 to 25 year old boys.

Commuting daily to Columbus on the Pickaway county NYA bus, young Boltenhouse has been specializing on the shaper and has made a splendid training record. At Muskingum he will continue in the same type of work.

At the NYA center at Carrollton the boys live in barracks, work eight hour shifts five days a week, have two liberty nights in town and are taken to church on Sunday if they wish. The boys have a system of self-government with a mayor and court similar to the student council in many public schools.

No experience is necessary to apply for these courses which include welding, radio, machine shop, blue printing, inspecting, wood working and airplane mechanics.

Information may be obtained from Miss Catherine Weis who is at the U. S. Employment Service office every Monday from 10:30 a. m. to noon.

Details of Book 3 have never been disclosed, but it is expected to be materially different from the current book and also Book No. 2, to be distributed late this month, which will be used to ration canned goods and meat.

TEN MEMBERS OF DEFENSE UNITS TO HEAR REID

Ten members of the Circleville and Pickaway county defense council will go to Columbus Wednesday evening to witness a demonstration of new techniques in blackout lighting.

Kirk Reid, widely known authority on blackouts, will present an illustrated lecture at the meeting, sponsored jointly by the Franklin County Council of Defense and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Reid will discuss blackout lighting problems and answer questions of local defense corps officials. He also will explain recently developed visual aids, types of lights adapted for blackouts, and interior lighting during blackouts.

Reid for some time has been assisting the military services in the development of blackout, dimout and special lighting techniques.

SCHROEDER TO SPEAK AT ASSEMBLY OF JAYCEES

Lieutenant Joseph Schroeder, public relations officer at Lockbourne air base, will speak Tuesday evening following a Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner in Pickaway Arms. The meeting starts at 7 o'clock.

Lieutenant Schroeder expects to bring eight Lockbourne boys with him, all of them members of Junior Chamber of Commerce organizations throughout the nation.

The meeting promises to be an interesting one.

MERCHANT SHIPPING WRANGLE

A heavyweight scrap is about to break into the open between the Navy and Maritime Commission on the issue of the Navy's desire to take over control of the entire American Merchant Marine.

Very quietly, the Navy has supplied certain members of the House Naval Affairs Committee with information about the "subversive" and "undisciplined" conduct of American seamen on merchant ships, and at least one Congressman has declared privately that the information will shock the entire country when it is disclosed.

The Maritime Commission, however, is skeptical, suspects the Navy of feeding biased information to Congress in order to take over merchant shipping.

The Navy made a similar campaign last year, but was overruled by the President, who opposed any change in the civilian status of the Merchant Marine.

Latest batch of stories makes sensational reading. Take the case of the "Thomas Jefferson." According to the Navy, this ship was operating in the dangerous waters of the Aleutian Islands when a U. S. destroyer came alongside in the early morning and asked for oil. But, according to the Navy version, the master replied, "We can't give you oil until after eight o'clock; the men are at breakfast."

Maritime Commission investigating the charge found that the incident occurred not in the Aleutians, but in the safe water near Seattle, Wash.

Also, the master of the "Thomas Jefferson" had volunteered to provide the destroyer with oil at any time, but it was mutually agreed to move out of mid-channel first, so the two ships would not block the traffic. As soon as this was done, the oil was passed to the destroyer.

SAILORS IN IRONS

From Murmansk, Russia, came the disturbing report that four American seamen were being held on charges of drunkenness, lewd conduct, and stealing from lifeboats. The charges were brought by Commander Samuel B. Frankel, U. S. Naval Attache in Murmansk. On these charges, the men were sent in a corvette to Glasgow, held in irons until arrangements could be made for their transportation back to the United States.

But when the Coast Guard, as the law provides, proceeded to take action against the men, it was impossible to find sufficient evidence to convict. Meantime, four seamen had lost six months of usefulness.

There was a similar case of fifteen men shipped back from Sidney Australia, to San Francisco for alleged misbehavior. But examination of the evidence found it insubstantial.

The Maritime Commission suspects the authors of these reports (Office of Naval Intelligence) of giving vent to class and racial antagonisms. They have one cablegram from Capetown, South Africa, describing "merchant crew troubles," and laying the blame on certain named seamen described as "draft dodger and radical," "sealawyer and Jew," "shifty eyed radical."

(NOTE: Merchant seamen are deferred from military service, hence cannot be draft-dodgers.)

One important source of friction is the fact that Navy personnel and merchant seamen are thrown together on the same ship, since the ship's guns are manned by a Navy crew ranging from 25 to 43 persons. These men are paid only about one-fourth as much as the seamen, yet undergo the same hazards.

Controversy over the entire merchant shipping problem has been simmering ever since the arming of merchant vessels, and is bound to boil over in Congress soon.

Newsboys Playing Important Roles in War Stamp Sales

HERALD'S BOYS COLLECT MORE THAN $26,000

Carriers Of Nation Sell Total Of 566,159,323 10-Centers In Twelve Months

HIGH MARK SET FOR 1943

Youths Gain Recognition For Outstanding Aid To War Effort

Importance of the role news-paper carriers of the nation, including those of The Circleville Herald, are playing in the nation's war effort was stressed Tuesday by Howard W. Stodghill, chairman of the newspaper advisory committee of the War Savings staff, announced that 566,159,323 10-cent War Stamps were sold in 1942.

Of this great total, more than 260,000 of the stamps were sold in Circleville by boys who daily deliver The Herald to hundreds of homes. Daily Herald carriers have collected more than $26,000 from their customers since the War Bond and Stamp drive was started.

Leading the parade of Daily Herald carriers in sale of Bonds and Stamps is Jimmy Hill whose total to date is 92,212 stamps, a total of $9,221.20. Second is Harry Briner, Jr. with $7,480.50 and third is Jimmy Lytle with $4,172.86.

All three of these youths have received honorary awards from the government for their work.

While many other boys have not reached the totals these three have attained, all are putting forth an effort to sell as many Stamps and Bonds as possible.

In revealing the achievement of newspaper boys in the nation which said was "a splendid contribution to the war effort by newspapers and their staffs," Stodghill disclosed that the committee's objective for 1943 is "the sale of one 10-cent War Stamp every week to every subscriber."

New Goal Set
Mr. Stodghill declares: "We are confident that the country's newspaper carriers who are doing their bit will do their best this year. During the last year the volume of sales amounted to better than $56,000,000. With our new goal we should reach the $70,000,000 mark easily."

Awards, patterned after the Army-Navy "E" have been set up for newspapers. Newspaper carriers achieving the new goal of one War Stamp per subscriber per week are authorized to display in their editions a Treasury Department honor "ear," which is signed by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury. The "ear" reads that it is awarded the newspaper, its carrier boys and subscribers for their patriotic support of the War Savings Program.

A War Stamp button, across which is printed "Thanks," is also being given to the circulation staffs of the honored newspapers.

Hawaii, which has broken many War Savings sales records, again is in the leadership in the newspaper boy activity in 1942 with sales averaging two 10-cent War Stamps per subscriber. Newspapers in Rhode Island, Mississippi and Arizona equalled this achievement.

FORMER HEALTH NURSE GOES TO MICHIGAN POST

Miss Margaret Hunsicker, West Union street, will leave Circleville Wednesday for Bay City, Mich., where she will start work next Monday as itinerant nurse teacher under the state board of vocational education in the state's home and hospital nursing aid program.

Miss Hunsicker, Pickaway county public health nurse for several years, is employed by the Bay City board of education and the state department of health. During the last four months Miss Hunsicker has been taking a special public health nursing course at Western Reserve university in Cleveland.

The program, in which Michigan is pioneering, is aimed at relieving the nursing situation in the state. Persons trained through the program will be able to assume jobs as nurses' aids in various hospitals of the state, and they will also be able to do other work now requiring services of specially-trained nurses who could be of much greater service in the war effort.

Courses to be set up in Bay City will be of four months, the training provided in that time being sufficient to prepare Michigan women for the program. Miss Hunsicker said Tuesday that only eight other cities in the state have undertaken this program, but that others are falling into line in an effort to alleviate the nursing problem.

After her work has been completed in the Bay City region, Miss Hunsicker expects assignment to other areas in the state.

OHIO STUDENTS INVITED TO DO WORK ON FARMS

Pickaway county students at Ohio State university, regardless of present courses they are taking, have been invited to become "farmers" every afternoon of the Spring quarter.

During the morning these students will pursue their regular major subjects, but from 2 to 5 p. m. five days a week those electing a new course just announced in the college of agriculture will do overalls and slacks to learn the problems of the real dirt farmer.

The new course, entitled "War Time Production of Essential Farm Commodities," is open to all students, regardless of their present courses. It carries 10 hours of credit counting toward graduation. It is intended to prepare students for work on farms this Summer, thus helping to meet the labor shortage which threatens a serious food deficiency.

A schedule has been set up, including poultry on Monday, agricultural engineering on Tuesday; agronomy, Wednesday; horticulture, Thursday; animal husbandry, Friday, and in between times study of other problems of farm life under the direction of the department of rural economics.

CLARENCE BAKER FINED

Clarence Baker of South Bloomington, arrested early Sunday for being intoxicated and disorderly, was fined $10 and costs Monday by Mayor Ben H. Gordon. LOCAL MASONS IN MIDST OF BUSY SEASON

Circleville Masonic orders are in the midst of a busy season, several organizations conducting meeting and planning other sessions of interest to all members of the various units.

Circleville Chapter Royal Arch Masons met Monday evening to confer the most excellent master degree on four candidates. A good attendance marked the meeting. Work was conducted by officers under direction of Harry Montelius, past high priest.

Carl Hohenstein of Kingston, high priest of the Chapter, lauded the officers for their work.

Regular meeting of Tyrian Council Royal and Select Masons will be conducted Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in Masonic Temple. The royal and select masters degree will be conferred in full form. Finus Heraldson of Chillicothe is illustrious master of the Council.

One of the biggest meetings of the year is scheduled next Monday at 6:30 p. m. when Royal Arch Masons have their annual inspection with Edgar A. Royer of Chillicothe, right excellent companion, as the inspecting officer. The meeting will also be marked by a dinner and visitation by George R. Schoedinger of Columbus, most excellent grand high priest for Ohio.

A large crowd is expected to attend the inspection.

KIWANIS HEAR TALK BY HAROLD DEFENBAUGH

Harold Defenbaugh, a member of the Circleville Kiwanis club, addressed the club Monday evening on "From Now On," discussing the necessity for looking to the future rather than the past.

The club session, held in Hanley's tearoom, was also marked by the visit of George Fritchie, Columbus, lieutenant governor of the fifth district in which the Circleville club is located.

SALE OF SHOES REOPENS UNDER SURPRISE ORDER

OPA Officials Working On Ration "Currency" For Distribution

BOOK NO. 3 MAY BE USED

Stamp 17 Good For First Purchase Of Footwear Until June 15

Shoe sales reopened Tuesday under the surprise sugar book rationing scheme and OPA officials set to work on a permanent form of ration "currency" for the long-range distribution of civilian footwear.

It was indicated that War Ration Book No. 3, now in process of preparation, may be employed in the extension of shoe rationing beyond June 15. Stamp 17 is good for the purchase of a pair of shoes until that date, however.

Details of Book 3 have never been disclosed, but it is expected to be materially different from the current book and also Book No. 2, to be distributed late this month, which will be used to ration canned goods and meat.

OPA officials pointed out that it would be unwise to overload ration Book 1, already used for coffee and sugar, by continuing its use for shoe purchases. Originally, a more elaborate method had been planned for shoes, but the program had to be streamlined and put into effect overnight because of a heavy buying spree.

"Ideal" Program
Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown termed the shoe-rationing plan "ideal" in that it was rushing into effect without advance notice, thus preventing a wave of hoarding.

OPA officials said they did not anticipate a "run" on stores as sales reopened today after a 33-hour "freeze," since a generous ration was allowed and consumers were assured that the shoes would be there when they wanted them.

"We shall use this technique whenever possible in future rationing plans, but I want to make it clear that it will not always be possible to handle rationing programs in this way," Brown said.

Procedure Explained

"Some rationing plans require such extensive advance preparations that we shall have to make them known before they become effective. In these cases, we shall have to continue to rely, as in the past, on the patriotism and self-restraint of the people."

Meat and canned goods rationing both required extensive preparations. OPA was forced to train 1,500,000 volunteer ration board workers, distribute millions of registration forms and prepare for the distribution of Book 2 beginning February 21.

Although canned goods rationing will get under way March 1, the OPA has not yet announced the date for opening of the meat program. Advance preparations, which are not yet completed, include the fixing of new dollars and cents price ceilings at retail levels and the establishment of standard cuts of meat.

With exception of clothing, however, virtually every major cost-of-living commodity used by the bulk of the civilian population has been brought within range of OPA's rationing powers. Reports have circulated for some time that fats and oils and dairy products are due to be rationed soon.

An OPA spokesman said that no plans would be put into process for clothing rationing "for some time to come," since present stocks are considered ample and the institution of such a program would require a tremendous amount of advance preparation.

COUNTY YOUTH ADVANCING IN TRADE TRAINING

After six weeks of machine shop training in the Columbus National Youth Administration machine shop, Charles Boltenhouse of Circleville Route 3, has been transferred to the NYA Muskingum resident center near Carrollton for 16 to 25 year old boys.

Commuting daily to Columbus on the Pickaway county NYA bus, young Boltenhouse has been specializing on the shaper and has made a splendid training record. At Muskingum he will continue in the same type of work.

At the NYA center at Carrollton the boys live in barracks, work eight hour shifts five days a week, have two liberty nights in town and are taken to church on Sunday if they wish. The boys have a system of self-government with a mayor and court similar to the student council in many public schools.

No experience is necessary to apply for these courses which include welding, radio, machine shop, blue printing, inspecting, wood working and airplane mechanics.

Information may be obtained from Miss Catherine Weis who is at the U. S. Employment Service office every Monday from 10:30 a. m. to noon.

TEN MEMBERS OF DEFENSE UNITS TO HEAR REID

Ten members of the Circleville and Pickaway county defense council will go to Columbus Wednesday evening to witness a demonstration of new techniques in blackout lighting.

Kirk Reid, widely known authority on blackouts, will present an illustrated lecture at the meeting, U. S. destroyer came alongside in the early morning and asked for oil. But, according to the Navy version, the master replied, "We can't give you oil until after eight o'clock; the men are at breakfast."

Reid will discuss blackout lighting problems and answer questions of local defense corps officials. He also will explain recently developed visual aids, types of lights adapted for blackouts, and interior lighting during blackouts.

Reid for some time has been assisting the military services in the development of blackout, dimout and special lighting techniques.

SCHROEDER TO SPEAK AT ASSEMBLY OF JAYCEES

Lieutenant Joseph Schroeder, public relations officer at Lockbourne air base, will speak Tuesday evening following a Junior Chamber of Commerce dinner in Pickaway Arms. The meeting starts at 7 o'clock.

Lieutenant Schroeder expects to bring eight Lockbourne boys with him, all of them members of Junior Chamber of Commerce organizations throughout the nation.

The meeting promises to be an interesting one.

MERCHANT SHIPPING WRANGLE

A heavyweight scrap is about to break into the open between the Navy and Maritime Commission on the issue of the Navy's desire to take over control of the entire American Merchant Marine.

Very quietly, the Navy has supplied certain members of the House Naval Affairs Committee with information about the "subversive" and "undisciplined" conduct of American seamen on merchant ships, and at least one Congressman has declared privately that the information will shock the entire country when it is disclosed.

The Maritime Commission, however, is skeptical, suspects the Navy of feeding biased information to Congress in order to take over merchant shipping.

The Navy made a similar campaign last year, but was overruled by the President, who opposed any change in the civilian status of the Merchant Marine.

Latest batch of stories makes sensational reading. Take the case of the "Thomas Jefferson." According to the Navy, this ship was operating in the dangerous waters of the Aleutian Islands when a U. S. destroyer came alongside in the early morning and asked for oil. But, according to the Navy version, the master replied, "We can't give you oil until after eight o'clock; the men are at breakfast."

Maritime Commission investigating the charge found that the incident occurred not in the Aleutians, but in the safe water near Seattle, Wash.
